Tobin Wants Boston Tax Rate Cut

Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin will attempt to hammer Boston's tax rate down to a normal level and build Boston's industry—and this will mean instituting economies, he told the Advertising Club of Boston at a Statler luncheon today.

"Some people may be disappointed," he added significantly. "But I've got a duty to perform and I'm going to try and perform that duty as well as I can. We must put our house in order."

The mayor-elect's address was the first he has made since his election last week, and to make it he returned to Boston after a six-day vacation trip.

"Boston has lost, during the past seven or eight years, over 500 business establishments," Tobin told the advertising men.

46 MILLION WAGES LOST

"It has been estimated that the loss of these establishments means a direct loss of $46,000,000 annually in wages.

"No city, especially our city, can stand that kind of a loss. The loss of direct revenues to the city government is enormous, the loss of employable opportunities is great—and the indirect loss is felt all along the line.

"One of the main factors in this loss is the city government itself. No business establishment can meet the competition of its rivals if that establishment is located in a city which is so expensively operated that local taxes are confiscatory in their burden.

"We must so conduct and operate our city government as to encourage the establishment of new industries within our borders.

"Boston has stood for over a century as a great city. It is the commercial center of New Eng-

Last night, unable to sleep, she arose while he slept and went to the roof of the seven-story apartment where they lived, their five-month-old daughter in her arms. A moment later she jumped.

The baby, Margaret, landed on the roof of a parked car and was killed instantly. Mrs. Begge's body hurtled into the street.

U. S. Homes Looted in Shanghai

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1937)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9—China lost Shanghai today, but she is a long way from losing the war.

The shriek of shells and the roar of air bombs blasting the last Chinese troops from contact with the International Settlement brought panic to 10,000 foreign businessmen, who are now fearfully staring face to face at the Nipponese menace to their $2,000,000,000 investment here.

But Chinese leaders gave an impressive example of courage in remaining at their posts in Shanghai as the nation's greatest city came under complete military control of the Japanese.

SET NEW LINES

Chinese troops, withdrawing to the area west of the city, abandoned their last contact with the foreign section and established new lines five miles away, while two Japanese armies, hot on the heels of the retreating Chinese, swarmed northward and southward.

Tonight they met and cut off Shanghai from all contact with the outside world save by water.

As they retreated the Chinese set fire to the $20,000,000 Toyoda cotton mill on the south bank of Soochow Creek, a short distance west of the International Settlement.

Many British and American homes in the Hungjao road district were looted yesterday when the mass withdrawal first got under way. Furniture in the houses was wrecked and cellars were raided.

THOUSANDS TRAPPED

Not all the Chinese defenders of the city were able to escape. Several thousand were trapped south of Lunghwa station, where they were bombed by the Japanese, and other Chinese were encircled in the Siccawei Observatory compound.

These latter Chinese forces refused a French request that they surrender.

Another 10,000 Chinese were trapped in the Nantao region adjoining the French concession. Four hundred Japanese, with 13 tanks, entered this district, while Japanese planes carried out further raids on Pootung to dislodge the last remaining defenders there.

The Chinese in Nantao were commanded by General Tasi Ching-chung. Their presence there was described as a "face saving" maneuver to replace police forces which had fled.

STREAM OF REFUGEES

Presence of the large force in Nantao led to assertions the Chinese had set fire to all bridges over Zahwei creek. Meanwhile, almost the entire civilian population of Nantao, normally 700,000, poured into foreign areas in an

Four Works Progress Administration projects for Massachusetts totalling $94,330 were approved today by the comptroller general, according to a dispatch from Washington.

Jap Premier's Son Calls on Roosevelt

Slays Wife, Shoots Pal At Taunt

GLENDALE, Cal., Nov. 9 (INS)—Taunted by his wife when he assertedly found her kissing his "best friend," Paul A. Wright, 38, president of the Union Air Terminal, today shot and killed her and critically wounded John B. Kimmel, 36, airport traffic manager.

The shooting occurred in the Wright's Verdugo Vista home here after the trio had visited several Hollywood night spots.

The wife, Mrs. Evelyn Wright, 33, daughter of Mrs. J. E. McBride of Detroit, died instantly with five bullets in her body.

Kimmel, shot in the head and twice in the chest, was rushed to a hospital for an emergency operation in an attempt to save his life.

TAUNTED BY WIFE

Wright told the officers he found his wife and Kimmel embracing on a piano bench, that she laughed when he rebuked them and then kissed Kimmel again.

Then, he said, "everything went white," he got his gun and began to shoot.

Wright afterwards made a complete confession, Chief of Police V. B. Browne announced.

Repeatedly Wright referred to Kimmel as "my best friend."

"Late yesterday Kimmel and I

Raffray Divorce Suit Filed

RENO, Nev., Nov. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Kirk Raffray filed suit today for a divorce from Jacques A. L. Raffray, which is expected to clear the way for her marriage later this week to Ernest Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor.

She charged Raffray, an insurance broker and former French army officer, with cruelty.

Mrs. Raffray has been a friend of the Duchess of Windsor for years. She was her bridesmaid when the latter was married to her first husband, Lieut. Earl Winfield Spencer. Mrs. Raffray later introduced the then Mrs. Spencer to Simpson.

The Raffrays were married June 29, 1918, in Baltimore. Raffray also is reportedly planning another marriage.

Mrs. Connie de Bower has been in Reno for a few weeks establishing residence to divorce Herbert de Bower. After her expected decree is granted later this month she plans to be married to Raffray.

Ellis Island Board Bars 'Benito Girl'

Cites Admission She Shot Ambassador; Appeal Planned

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Magda de Fontanges today was barred from entering the United States by a board of U. S. Immigration commissioners who heard her case at Ellis Island. They refused her entry on grounds of "moral turpitude."

The dark-eyed French girl, who shot the former French ambassador to Italy, Count Charles de Chambrun, after she said he ended her love affair with Premier "My Benito" Mussolini, was refused the right to enter the United States by a board of special inquiry.

The board in its decision said that Mlle. Fontanges had admitted "a crime involving moral turpitude, to wit, assault with a dangerous weapon."

Mlle. Fontanges, on arriving yesterday, declined to discuss her self-proclaimed romance with Mussolini.

She came to this country to appear in a Broadway night club, but pending the hearing at Ellis Island was compelled to remain aboard ship.

This morning, while crowds lined the sea wall at the Battery to obtain a glimpse of her, she was taken in a government ferry to Ellis Island.

Following the local board's decision to exclude her, she announced that she would appeal to the board of review at Washington. The appeal will act as an automatic stay, and she probably will remain on Ellis Island until Washington authorities act.

Today's hearing was closed to the public, but it became known later that no effort was made to inquire into Mme. Fontanges' friendship with Mussolini.

Hurley to Name New Judge

Governor Hurley said today that he will submit "one or more" judicial appointments to the executive council tomorrow.

The outstanding vacancy is that on the superior bench, caused by elevation of Judge Louis S. Cox to the Supreme Court.

Most prominently mentioned for this judgeship are Paul G. Kirk, commissioner of public safety; Attorney William C. Giles of Springfield, former law partner of ex-Governor Joseph B. Ely, and State Senator William McSweeney, former assistant district attorney of Essex County. Kirk is believed to have the edge for the appointment.

It is expected that the appointment of Judge Cox to the Supreme Court bench will be approved at tomorrow's council session.

There are several other probate and district court appointments to be made.

TRUCK TAKES LIFE OF BOY, 7, IN 'COP-ROBBER' GAME

Death brought a tragic end to a childish game of "cops and robbers" today, when Martin Olsen, seven-year-old Charlestown boy, died at Haymarket Relief Hospital.

A 14-year-old boy played the role of the "cop," binding his playmate and leaving him in a gutter for the forces of the "law" to take care of him.

GIVEN TOY HANDCUFFS

When his chum returned from school the boy showed him the handcuffs and asked him to join him in a game of "cops and robbers," an age-old game of childhood.

The bigger and older boy was named the "cop," while little Martin chose the role of the "robber."

The smaller boy was chased through yards, alleys and over fences before the "law" caught up with him. He was bound with window cord and manacled with his own handcuffs.

PLACED IN GUTTER

He was laid carefully in a gutter until such time as his captor chose to release him.

A truck operated by Samuel J. Tarrant, 51, a neighbor, came rumbling up the curving thoroughfare, wheeled into the curb at the very spot and passed over the boy "captive" from his head to his shoulders.

Admits He Killed 2 Police

"I was shot in the back!"

Edward P. Simpson, ex-convict and jail-breaker accused of murdering two Newton policemen, took the stand in his own defense—and that is what he told the jury in Middlesex Superior Court today.

Moreover, Simpson swore the shooting was without provocation. Simpson testified:

"Officer Murphy on the motorcycle came up from behind. He came around on the sidewalk and fired at me from behind.

"KNEW BELL WAS SHOT"

"I picked my pistol up off the floor of the car, and I turned and fired at him. Then he fell down.

"Then I saw Officer Bell pull his gun out, and there was a struggle. I knew he (Bell) had been shot. I tried to push him out of the car so I could get out. My left side was numb. I had to get out on the right side (of the car).

"I saw Officer Murphy stretched out in the gutter, and I ran over towards a house. Then there were some more shots, but none of them hit me."

RIGHT OF PRESERVATION

The biggest crowd of the trial—a crowd that jammed the courtroom and corridors outside—was on han dwhen Simpson, showing no sign of emotion, mounted the witness stand.

Previously Defense Attorney John M. Boyle, in an opening statement to the jury, had told the jurors the defense was "self defense—the right of self-preservation."

"Simpson will tell you," Boyle told the jurors, "that he was shot in the back by someone he did not know—that he did not know, at that moment, the Murphy was a policeman—and that the shooting of bell was accidental."

Boyle then outlined to the jury the defense version of what happened the night of August 21 when the shooting took place.

"Simpson," Doyle told the jurors, "will tell you that, the night of August 21, he met a young woman, that she accepted an invitation to go for an automobile ride, that after awhile she requested permission to drive the car herself.

"He will tell you he consented, but told her the car was not his—that he had borrowed it from a friend.

"He will tell you that when they reached Newton Corner, the Mother, Baby Gas Victims

Found in Kitchen, Infant Dead

CHICOPEE, Nov. 9 — With her dead baby cradled in her arms, a 41-year-old mother today was found unconscious in a chair in the gas-filled kitchen of her home in Clarendon avenue here, police reported.

The mother, Mrs. Effie Mercier, was removed to Providence Hospital in Holyoke, where it was said she would recover. A police guard was set up at her bedside.

Mrs. Mercier and the dead child, Marilyn, one and a half, were found by the woman's 17-year-old daughter, Winifred, who summoned neighbors and the police.

Police said the girl told them gas was flowing from every jet in the kitchen range. Mrs. Mercier, mother of five children, the oldest 19, was despondent for the past two months, police said they were told.

Litvinoff Bolts Brussels Parley

Soviet Delegate Incensed Over Plan to Name Italy on Sino Peace Board

BRUSSELS, Nov. 9 (AP)—Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff, Russian delegate to the Brussels conference seeking an end to the Chinese-Japanese war, announced suddenly today that he is leaving for Moscow tonight.

Litvinoff's departure was regarded as a protest against a move apparently under way to eliminate Russia from major conference activities. Such a move to exclude Russia presumably would be an effort to placate Japan.

Japanese unofficially have made clear here that they would exchange information about the Chinese conflict with signatories of the Nine-Power treaty, but not with outsiders. Russia, not a signatory to the treaty, which pledges respect for China's territorial integrity, was invited to the conference because of her interests in the Far East.

SENSATIONAL BOLT

The Litvinoff bolt is the more sensational because British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned from London today for continued conference sessions, scheduled to resume tomorrow, and French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos is coming tonight.

It was reported Litvinoff was incensed particularly over a plan to name Italy to membership on a proposed conciliation committe, and to ignore Russia. Russian resentment has ben hightend by Italian adhernce to the German-Japanes pact against Bolshevism.

It was understood the United States delgation will insist upon including The Netherlands on the committe, if it is decides to name Belgium, England, the United States, France and Italy.

CHINA BACKS SOVIET

China will preserve her friendship with Soviet Russia—not renounce it to join any group of powers dominated by a particular philosophy, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, China's representative here, said today.

This was China's answer to reports from Berlin that more satisfactory peace between Japan and China might be achieved if China were to adhere to the German-Japanese-Italian anti-Bolshevist pact.

Tokyo Postpones Reply to Conference

TOKYO, Nov. 9 (INS)—Refusing to heed pleas for a speedy reply, the Japanese cabinet today decided to postpone its answer to the latest note from the Brussels nine-power treaty conference until Nov. 12.

The conference note, sent to Tokyo in the face of Japan's refusal to attend the parley, asked Japan to engage in an "exchange of views" on the Sino-Japanese conflict and requested an answer as soon as possible. The conference had hoped to receive a reply by tonight.

Rome Warns Soviets To "Keep Off" Pact

ROME, Nov. 9 (INS)—A sharp warning the tri-power agreement against Communism could easily be transformed into an anti-Russian naval and military alliance was sounded by the Italian press today, as the Soviets planned a second protest against its signing.

Hitler Hails Formation Of "World Triangle"

MUNICH, Nov. 9 (AP)—Nazi Germany today solemnly observed the fourteenth anniversary of the unsuccessful "beer cellar putsch" of 1923.

Speaking at the scene of the uprising, Chancellor Adolf Hitler praised the political accomplishments of his regime resulting "first in establishment of a European axis (Italy and Germany) and afterwards of a world triangle" (Italy, Germany and Japan).

"For the first time in the history of Germany," he told his old comrades, "a central authority has been established possessing unrestricted power and scorning any attempts at being impeded or sabotaged."

Referring to events of 14 years ago, Hitler said:

"Our failure then was the most fortunate circumstance in my life and in the history of the German nation, for it prevented Bavarian separation from the Reich."

Aragon Battle Deadlocked

MADRID, Nov. 9 (AP)—Spanish government and insurgent forces were locked today in a deadly but as yet inconclusive conflict along the precipitous banks of the Gallego river in upper Aragon.

Insurgent shock troops forded the near-freezing stream and captured two strategic hills in the Penasa and Pezol De Los Canas sectors. They attempted to take a third hill but were repulsed and a government counter-attack drove them from one of the captured peaks.

The fighting brought heavy insurgent losses, a government communique said. Government patrols crossed the river and delivered a vital blow on the insurgents by dynamiting a railroad connecting Jaca with Orna and Sabinanigo and the rest of insurgent Spain.

Japan Trade Pact To Cover Ethiopia

TOKYO, Nov. 9 (INS)—Japan and Italy have reached an agreement providing for application of the existing Italo-Japanese commercial treaty to Italian possessions in East Africa, including Ethiopia, it was understood today.

Crack Jap Army On Red Border As War Nears

Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Bloc May Rouse Soviet Action

TOKYO, Nov. 9 (AP)—One of Japan's most powerful armies deployed today along the Soviet frontier of Japanese-dominated Manchoukuo while Japanese and neutral observers shared the almost unanimous belief that relations between Russia and Japan were nearing fracture.

The strained diplomatic situation—and perhaps the massing of crack Japanese troops on the Manchoukuo border—grew out of the recent strengthening of the German-Japanese anti-Communism front with the entrance of Italy and friction over renewal of Soviet fishing concessions.

REPORT TO SET POLICY

The Tokyo newspaper Hochi reported Russia was taking strong measures to bolster her Far Eastern army and that Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff, her defense commissar, was hurrying to Khabarovsk, Siberia, to execute a "sweeping reformation" of the trans-Baikal forces.

Dispatches to the newspaper from Vladivostok said Voroshiloff's report to the Kremlin regarding the strength of the Far Eastern army was expected finally to determine the decision in Moscow.

The same source said the Soviet Union had extended the term of service for soldiers in Siberia and was rushing others into the area as "railway employes."

CRACK TROOPS READY

Japan's military forces are a mixture of men from both the active and reserve lists. Military experts said "Japan is avoiding the German mistake in the World War of killing off the best troops first."

But Tokyo's forces along the Manchoukuo frontier were reported practically 100 per cent from the active rolls. They had the best war equipment available.

Mukden Reported Under Martial Law

LONDON, Nov. 9 (INS)—Amid spreading revolts in Japanese-dominated Manchukuo, martial law has been declared at Mukden, largest city of the puppet state, it was reported today by the London Daily Herald.

An undated article in the Herald said many Japanese families have fled Mukden and that the lives and property of those remaining in the city are in danger.

Chinese and Korean inhabitants of many other towns in the Manchurian territory conquered by Japan six years ago were reported rising in armed rebellion against the Japanese military masters.

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS:

Tax Reform Hope Appears Brighter

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9—In the Washington wishful thinking about changing the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes, you can hear anything from assurances that all affected financial officials except Herman Oliphant have been won over, to assertions of the President's adamantine opposition. In general, the prospect of tax reform is bright. There has been softening up in the administration attitude. There is talk in the returning Congress of taking this bit in its teeth.

Everybody frankly fears a new depression. The position taken long ago by this column seems to be more generally accepted, that the restoration of a flow of investment money to the economic mill is the only way to prevent depression. One way to restore that flow would be to amend these tax laws the present effect of which is to freeze investment.

It is by no means certain that this step alone would do the trick. There is too much fear of uncertainty about other policies, threats and acts of this administration to give investment money much confidence in getting itself sewed up in the kind of long-term unliquid securities that are necessary in the heavy goods field to restore a sound and balanced prosperity.

But it seems to be a growing conviction that while this change alone might not be enough to break down the dam, nevertheless, without this change, there is no hope at all.

The most immediate field for heavy private construction is in the utilities, where progress and building have been paralyzed for years by governmental threats and competition.

The story here is that within government itself a conviction had about been reached that something ought to be done to encourage private investment in the utilities when, a little over a week ago, the utilities or their bankers let out such a blast on this subject that the administration could hardly move at once along the more liberal line it was about to take without "losing face."

* * *

There is this kind of psychological situation also in tax reform. The demand is strident and general. But the New Deal has a very tender and sensitive skin. It doesn't like to do things under pressure. It never admits a mistake.

It may change pace, front and direction, but rarely at a time when the air is full of criticism of the course it purposes to abandon. This is too bad for the country, but that is how the boys are and the country will have to put up with it.

A fantastical story about tax reform comes to me from a source that is seldom wrong. It is that British authorities close to the Treasury are strongly advising against any modification of our capital gains. This is a pippin. Great Britain does not tax capital gains. As a result, British money is always johnny-on-the-spot wherever there is a new oil field to bring in, a new country to open up, or a chance to start any kind of profitable development anywhere in the world.

On the Air

(Radio comment by General Hugh S. Johnson is broadcast every Monday night at 8 o'clock, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 10 o'clock, and on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, through Station WBZ-WBZA.)

* * *

Under our capital gains tax system (in which our government calls growth of capital income, and taxes it as such, in the year of realization), American money has practically ceased to compete in this field. How could it under a rule of "if you lose you lose all; if you win the government takes it?"

That cuts us off from one of the most fruitful fields for the use of national wealth—the encouragement of world trade by the development of backward countries. Quite naturally the British don't want our tax laws changed.

This is another of our government's well-intentioned blunders. It is destroying this wide field of business and employment in its attempt to activate prosperity by "spreading wealth." It is not activating prosperity—but freezing it. It is not spreading wealth—but poverty.

Shanghai Falls, Japan Planes Strafe Chinese

The fall of the city, after a bloody battle that began August 13 and develcped into probably the greatest military engagement anywhere on earth since the World War, fulfilled the Japanese determination to capture the city while the powers at Brussels were still deliberating on the Far Eastern war.

As a result the Japanese are now in position to give Shanghai back to China if the Nanking government accepts Nippon's minimum terms for peace. These terms, exclusively revealed in these dispatches last week, call for recognition of an independent state established under Japanese auspices in North China.

SCENES OF CARNAGE

Bloody scenes of carnage accompanied the fall of the city before the military might of Japan. Chinese troops withdrew hastily to new positions west of the city, and cut off from all contact with it, pursued by Japanese planes which bombed and strafed the fleeing soldiers.

The headlong Japanese drive carried their advance guards clear across the Jessfield bridge, a structure west of the Settlement which was the central point of an area which only a few days ago was under terrific bombardment by Japanese artillery.

Following the defenders' retreat from Shanghai's western front, they apparently were planning to rally along a new battle line connecting the town of Tatsung with Kunshan, a point located 28 miles northwest of Shanghai.

In the midst of the dramatic Japanese victory, French forces guarding their concession moved their lines up to the west past the Hungsao cemetery and the ruins of the Japanese Tungwen University.

Fall of the city created a peculiar position for Shanghai's mayor, O. K. Yui—who found himself a mayor without a city.

He and other officials, including T. V. Soong, the Chinese government's financial wizard—all "blacklisted" by the Japanese—remained under guard in villas in the French concession, virtual prisoners of circumstances.

KEY POSITIONS

Among key positions occupied by the Japanese were the Hungjao airdrome and the strategic suburban town of Kiangkiao. These successes, achieved before the mass retreat began, played a major part in breaking the back of the Chinese resistance.

At the same time, Nippon's legions in the north won still further victories. An official Japanese communique from Peiping said the Japanese had completely occupied Taiyuanfu, Shansi Province capital, at 8:30 a. m.

West of Shanghai, hours after their conquest was virtually complete, Japanese aircraft still were attacking and harrying the retreating Chinese, evidently to forestall a possible rally and counterattack.

PLANES FIRE TOWN

The planes dropped tons of high explosives on the troops and on military objectives over a wide area, leaving the town of Tsingpu in flames and inflicting heavy casualties on a large body of Chinese fleeing to Tsingpu.

It was reported the Chinese Central bank and other leading banks had removed their headquarters to Nanking.

Several hours before sundown, the Japanese were in control of approximately 56 square miles of the Shanghai region. This area was bounded on the north and south by Soochow creek and Hungjao road and on the west and east by Monument road and the Shanghai-Hankchow-Ningpo railroad.

Japanese authorities claimed not a single Chinese soldier remained alive in this entire area after the Japanese forces moved through like a death-dealing hurricane.

One Chinese division ordered to make a last stand took up positions in Nantao, adjoining the French concession. They were attacked by scores of Japanese planes which power-dived and hurled tons of bombs into the area, starting many fires.

JAPANESE JUBILANT

Japanese commanders were jubilant over the success of their drive. They declared the "isolation" of Shanghai had dealt a crushing blow to the Nanking government and to anti-Japanese agitators.

The Chinese government, they boasted, has lost its financial and industrial center and the agitators their base of operations.

The Japanese claimed that leaders of the anti-Japanese agitators are now taking refuge in the international settlement and French concession, although headquarters of the Kuomintang and other "anti-Japanese organizations" have been transferred to Nanking.

Japan's maneuver in which the heroic defenders of Shanghai were finally driven to cover was a pincer-like movement from north and south designed to cut off Shanghai from all communication with the interior and trap the Chinese defense forces.

The battle which amazed the world for nearly three months is estimated to have cost at least 1[illegible]0,000 in dead and wounded.

Reports 2500 Haitians Slain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Foreign Minister Georges Leger of Haiti said today that between 2500 and 5000 Haitians, including women and children, had been killed, or wounded, since October 5 in Dominican territory.

These casualties, Leger said, are the consequence of attacks on Haitians "well within the Dominican territory" by Dominican police and civilians.

This assertion contradicted one made last night by Dominican Minister Andreas Pastoriza, who said stories of "collective slayings" in Dominican territory were "wholly absurd," and that a "border incident" of last month had been exaggerated.

The Haitian minister, who arrived in Washington early today for a conference with President Roosevelt and acting Secretary of State Welles, declared there has been no frontier incident, nor any clashes between armed forces.

Rajah's Beautiful Daughter Vows She'll Wed Wrestler

LONDON, Nov. 9—Those pretty Sarawaks are keeping the tongue of many a Briton wagging these days—much to the discomfort of their father, the only white rajah in the world.

Because, for the second time in six years, a marital crisis is gripping the most picturesque ruling family of the British Empire.

Princess Baba of Sarawak, also known as Valeria Brooke

Twenty-one-year-old Princess Baba, otherwise known as Valeria Brooke, youngest and beautiful daughter of Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, English Rajah of Sarawak, has announced her intention of marrying a wrestler—25-year-old handsome Robert Gregory, middleweight catch-as-catch-can champion of Europe.

And the 63-year-old white rajah, who lives in a palace and rules a country in Borneo that is as large as England, Ireland and Wales together, is furious—threatening to disown his daughter if she allows the dictates of her heart to sway her.

SISTER WED BANDMAN

"Of course I'm going to marry Bob. Father doesn't mean what he says. He hates publicity and that's why he's upset."

Publicity . . .

It was only a few years ago that the rajah had his first real taste of such publicity.

His second daughter, Elizabeth, also pretty and known as Princess Pearl, married Harry Roy, popular British dance band leader.

Sir Charles was just as furious then—as he is now—but later recapitulated, comforted, perhaps, by the fact that his eldest daughter is Lady Inchcape, married to the Earl of Inchcape, brother of Elsie MacKay, British aviatrix, who lost her life in an attempted transatlantic flight.

JUST A FIGHT TO HIM

And, regardless of what the Rajah says or does, it also makes no difference to Gregory, the wrestler, whose engagement to the girl followed a whirlwind courtship. He had this to say:

"The fact that Valeria's father has threatened to disinherit her doesn't worry us in the least.

"I can take care of her. I've always been a fighter and this is only another fight. I'm not pinned down yet."

But Britains wonder if Gregory knows the history of the Brooke family—history without a parallel.

Wife of the Rajah—and Gregory's prospective mother-in-law—adopted the faith of Mohammed in a ceremony that took place aboard an airplane midway between London and Paris.

MAMA AND HEAD-HUNTERS

In her home in northern Borneo the Ranee of Sarawak, as the wife of the white Rajah is known, associated with head hunters, wears dresses of gold and drinks gin slings with cherry brandy added as all part of a day's work.

The first Rajah, James Brooke, went to Borneo in 1860 in search of adventure. He found the natives in revolutionary movement against the Sultan and he threw in his lot with them.

Victorious, Sarawak proclaimed itself an independent state and James was named the Rajah—the first white man ever to earn the title.

When he died he willed the mantle of sovereignty to his nephew, Charles Brooke, who ruled until 1917. Then came the present rajah, created a knight in 1927.

Sir Charles ruled 500,000 natives and 40,000 square miles. Head hunters of the fiercest variety inhabit the interior of his domain.

Princess Pearl, now Mrs. Harry Roy

The Sarawaks of London are in the news again. This time, Princess Baba, or if you please Valeria Brooke, daughter of the world's only white Rajah, announces she will marry a London wrestler. Her father says "No." However, Valeria insists she will marry the athlete. Only a few years ago the Rajah opposed the marriage of his daughter, Elizabeth, Princess Pearl, to Harry Roy, the London band leader. The Rajah lost this battle and seems to be facing a second defeat—in effort to halt his daughters' romances.

Ranee in U. S., Tells Of Head-Hunters

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Her Highness, the Ranee of Sarawak, White Queen of the Northern Borneo territory, arrived today in the Cunard-White Star liner Aquitania, full of tales of head-hunting and the use of heads in courtship.

The Ranee is the former Sylvia Brett, daughter of the English Lord Esher. She became a Ranee by marrying into the Brooke family, which has ruled Sarawak since 1841.

"The Malay girls do not want to marry a man until he gets a head," the Ranee said. "There was a case of one boy, who lopped off his father's head because his girl would not say 'yes' until he had got a head. His excuse was that his father was an old man, anyway."

The punishmetn for head-hunting is work. The guilty ones are taken to the capital city, Kuching, given jobs and prevented from going back to the jungle—a pretty severe punishment from the viewpoint of a head-hunter.

Her Highness, the Ranee of Sarawak, white queen of a Borneo domain and mother of Princess Baba, beautiful daughter of the only white Rajah, arrived in New York today. In interviews she did not mention the approaching marriage of Princess Baba to a wrestler.

The strike was called last Tuesday night by the Wilkesbarre branch of the American Newspaper Guild.

Van Layes said there would be no advertising in the newspaper until Wednesday, and that much space would be devoted to comics.

Blast at Aimee's Temple Injures 5

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9 (INS)—Explosives that Bible students at Aimee McPherson's Angelus Temple set off for their own amusement, shook the famous house of worship, tore a hole in the roof of the Bible school and created great excitement and wild rumors.

Five persons were injured, two of them seriously. Sixteen-year-old Gordon Atwater's hand was blown off in the blast, and Edwin Bond, 16, suffered from cuts and bruises and from shock.

Lash Victim Guilty On Girl's Charges

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 9 (AP)—Oscar Kay, 47, who said he was whipped by a 17-year-old girl last August after her father and two brothers accused him of slanderous remarks, stood convicted today of the slander charge.

Judge J. Arthur Charbonnet said Kay would be sentenced Friday.

Alfred Willis, father of the girl, Eloise Willis, told police August 8 that he and his sons had tied Kay to a tree, and that the girl had flogged him for alleged slanderous stories.

Ohio 'Golden Girl' Weds Rich 'Love Potion' Baron

LONDON, Nov. 9 (INS)—Marriage of the Belgian multi-millionaire, Baron Jean Empain, central figure in a "love potion" trial last year, to Rozelle Roland, 22-year-old cabaret entertainer of Columbus, O., was reported today by the Daily Mail.

The baron and the beautiful blonde entertainer, famed as the "Golden Girl," were secretly wed at the Frigyesi Nursing Home in Budapest, the newspaper said.

Thus culminated one of the strangest love triangles of recent times with the Ohio dancing girl emerging victorious over a rival, the renowned Danish beauty, Siegfriend "Baby" Knudsen.

A little more than a year ago Miss Knudsen created a sensation by suing a Paris woman fortune teller for $75,000 which the Danish girl said she had spent purchasing "love filtres and potions" with which to win the heart of Baron Empain.

She testified she had fed the potions to the wealthy Belgian nobelman surreptitiously, but that they failed to arouse his love for her.

Instead he went to London and became enamored of Miss Roland when he saw her performing her specialty, an Indian ritual dance done in the nude except for a coating of gold paint.

Miss Roland was a member of the baron's party of guests on several hunting and pleasure trips. For months there were rumors they had been secretly married. Now the Daily Mail declares these rumors are confirmed.

One of Europe's wealthiest men, Baron Empain, is builder and a director of the Paris subway. With a reputed net income of $10,000,000 a year he is interested in at least 80 European business enterprises.

Love Plea Fails To Free Man From Navy

Romance of Dancer And Former B. U. Boy Hits Snag

Bradford Greene, 22-year-old sailor-composer and former Boston University music student, today faced the prospect of seeing the world through a porthole for the next two-and-a-half years despite pretty Grace McDonald's plea to President Roosevelt for his release from the navy.

The creator of the score for "Right This Way," a musical comedy now being rehearsed in Cleveland for a Broadway opening, must serve out his term of enlistment, Rear Admiral Adolphus M. Andrews, chief of naval operations, decreed.

IN THE NAVY NOW

Admiral Andrews declared:

"Persons seeking the release of Bradford Greene should remember he has made a contract with the government to serve in the navy. He is not entitled to a discharge simply because he has written a play."

His decision means that Greene, now on a 30-day leave, must return to the Navy Music School in Washington, where he tools a trumpet and studies music under direction of Lieutenant Charles Benter.

The dictum also meant that romance for Grace will have to wait. She is 18, a dancer in the Broadway show "Babes In Arms," and lives in the Bronx.

TELLS OF HER LOVE

Professing her love for the young composer in her letter to the President, Grace wrote:

"Everything is looking wonderful for him. The play will open soon. It will be a great success, and that means a lot to me because he is 22 and I'm 18 and, well, your sons are not much older.

"Now that success is on our doorstep we would rather be together. The navy does not want to let Brad go. Neither do I."

The object of her affections, however, was not nearly so pronounced in the romance angle as the comely dancer. Terming Grace a "dear friend," he refused to say whether or not he loved her—at least until he gets out of the navy.

Boy, 15, Dares Death, Loses

Puts Bullet in Brain On 'Slim' Chance

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9 (AP)—Carroll S. Anderson, 15, offered to show 11-year-old Robert Bellon how a dishonored imperial czarist guardsman would kill himself.

"Carroll put one bullet in the gun and whirled the cylinder," Robert related to police.

"'You see,' he said, 'The Russian always had five chances out of six not to be killed.'

"He just stood straight, like a czar's bodyguard, lifted the gun to his head and pulled the trigger."

Moya Mitchell, 23, Stenographer, Is Licensed Flier

When the workaday hours are done and most girls are prettying up for that date or looking forward to an evening of dancing, Moya Mitchell, 23-year-old Medford miss, steps into her smart coupe, drives pell-mell to Boston Airport and goes up in the clouds away from it all.

Moya today is among that very select circle of young ladies who proudly possess a certified private pilot's license.

SOMETHING NEW

She wanted to do something new; something exciting. Flying offered her that release. She entered the newly-developed flight instruction school at Inter-City Airlines, and under the expert tutelage of Chief Pilot Mike Harlow, soon got to know the difference between an aileron and a wing strut.

Three months ago she arrived at that point in all students' life. She soloed. That was 50 hours ago. So with that time behind her, she took her test for a private pilot's license.

LIVES WITH FAMILY

Miss Mitchell lives with her family at 10 Fairmount street, Medford. She is employed as a stenographer and clerk in the offices of E. V. Lane, in the Registry of Motor Vehicles building, 100 Nashua street.

And when you ask who she thinks is the greatest pilot in the world she just answers:

"Why, Mike Harlow, of course."

Simpson Tells His Story of Killings

Calmly Declares He Was Shot First, in Back, Then He Fired

young woman applied the brakes in such a manner as to cause them to 'scream,' and that thereafter, he observed they were being followed by a police cruiser.

"He will tell you this cruiser followed them about two miles, making no effort to stop them. That finally, on Watertown road, they were stopped. That in the cruiser, as he learned afterward, were Officers William Whelan and Bell.

"He will tell you it was Whelan, not Bell, who actually halted him and his young woman companion, and who got out of the police cruiser and came over to question them. He will tell you Bell, at this time, remained in the car.

SAYS BELL DROVE CAR

"He will describe to you how Whelan then went away, leaving Bell, who got out of the cruiser, standing in the street by the car—how Whelan came back with another man and they all stood looking for a few minutes, and then Whelan and the other man went away again.

"He will tell you he stood talking to Bell a few minutes more, and that then Bell got into the car with him, and that it was Bell who drove the car down the street. He will tell you Bell was going with him to inspect a license he (Simpson) had told him he had in Watertown."

Simpson, Attorney Boyle emphasized, would "make it clear that Motorcycle Officer Murphy was at no time present" during this preliminary incident, when the car was first stopped by the cruiser and Simpson finally drove away with Bell at the wheel.

"He will tell you," Boyle declared, "that Bell suddenly said: "'Here comes Larry Murphy! "I'l stop him and turn him back.'

"Simpson will tell you that he did not know who 'Larry Murphy' might be. He will show you he had no means of knowing 'Larry Murphy' was a police officer.

"He will tell you Bell leaned out of the car and called: "Larry! Come over here."

"He will tell you Bell continued to call, several times, but that Murphy did not come over.

"He will tell you that, sitting there watching Bell leaning out of the window calling to Murphy, he (Simpson) suddenly was shot in the back!

"He will tell you the feeling that came over him as he reached down, seized his own pistol, and fired in return at the dim figure of a man at the car's back window.

"He will tell you he did not, even then, know who that man was.

"He wil tell you that, how, Bell turend and grappled with him for his pistol—that there was a struggle—that Bell had his own gun in his hand—and that, in the struggle, his (Simpson's) gun accidentally wein off.

"THEN HE RAN AWAY"

"Then he will describe to you how, blood pouring from his wound, he got out of the car, saw Murphy lying flat on the sidewalk. He will admit to you he did run, then. He will tell you the thoughts that ran through his mind, and the feelings he had. He will tell you he had just one thought—to get to a hospital and get medical care.

"He will describe to you how he ran across lots to Watertown square, how he there saw a woman sitting in an automobile, how he asked her to get out. He will tell you she did get out, and that when she did she said:

"'Give me my pocketbook!'"

"SHOT FOR HIS LIFE"

"He will show you she did get her pocketbook, and that he then drove to Brighton for help—that he did get hedp—that he was unconscious thereafter for two or three days.

"The defense, gentlemen of the jury, will be self-defense — the right of self-preservation. Simpson's contention is he was shot in the back by someone he did not know—and that the shooting of Bell was accidental."

Final witness for the state today was Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state police ballistics expert, who testified Simpson himself was shot by a bullet from Motorcycle Policeman Murphy's gun.

The state is expected to stress this point heavily in final argument to the jury.

The defense has intimated that it might seek to show that Simpson was "shot first" while grappling with Policeman Bell, whom he had disarmed and whom he had a prisoner in his car when Murphy intervened.

IDENTIFIES POLICE BULLET

The bullet with which Simpson himself was found to have been wounded when he was captured was introduced in evidence for the first time in connection with Captain Van Amburgh's testimony.

Captain Van Amburgh testified that, in his opinion as a ballastic expert, the bullet unquestionably came from Motorcycle Policeman Murphy's .38-caliber Colt service revolver. Van Amburgh testified the bullet was removed from high up in Simpson's shoulder, almost at his neck, in his presence in the Norfolk Prison Colony Hospital.

Van Amburgh explained to the jury how ballistics experts, by means of microscopic examination and comparison of the markings left on bullets as they pass through the rifled barrel of a revolver, are able definitely to identify certain bullets as having come from certain revolvers and pistols.

Such examination, he testified, definitely showed the bullet taken in two pieces from the base of Policeman Bell's spine came from Simpson's automatic pistol.

Examination of Simpson's automatic itself disclosed that the gun had jammed with three unfired cartridges still in it, Van Amburgh further stated.

There was one cartridge in the firing chamber, but another, partly in the chamber, kept the gun from functioning, and there was still a third cartridge in the magazine.

Van Amburgh carried with him enlarged photographs of the bullets taken from Simpson's shoulder and Bell's spine, and of the test bullets fired for purposes of comparison.

ALL PINNED ON SIMPSON

There also was an enlarged photograph of the bullet that, the State says, passed completely through Bell's body and was found later in Simpson's car.

Also there were enlarged photographs of four cartridge cases, three found on the scene of the shooting, the fourth from a test shot. These photographs showed the bases of the cartridges, where the firing pin strikes the percussion cap.

Microscopic comparisons, Van Amburgh stated positively, showed all four cartridges to have been marked by the same firing pin—in other words, to have been fired from the same gun—Simpson's automatic.

Tobin Pledges Rule of Economy

land. The same natural advantages that made Boston a great city are still at our fingertips.

"We have our port and that port should be developed and its facilities enlarged. I believe it may be possible to receive the benefit of the credit of the Commonwealth in the development of our port facilities.

"The residential character of our city is constantly changing. We are gradually becoming an industrial city with our residential sections outside the borders of our city.

"We must exert all our energies and utilize all our natural advantages to promote the industrial progress of our city, for there is our hope for a new city to meet the changing conditions.

CITES CIVIC PRIDE

"In the years that have gone, Boston has sent to all sections of our country its sons and daughters who have built up new cities and new communities.

"The spirit and enthusiasm which guided the footsteps of those who left our gates can still be found in abundance in our city. We must reach down and awaken that civic enthusiasm and civic spirit.

"Only yesterday I passed through the city of Manchester, N. H. When the Amoskeag plant closed its doors in that city a few years ago, it seemed as though the city was doomed to shrivel and decay, but that city today is fighting its way back into the industrial sunlight.

"The city of Manchester is living proof that a city that won't be licked can't be licked.

ASKS CO-OPERATION

"During my term as mayor I am going to call upon this organization (the Advertising Club) for help and assistance. There may be legislation needed to promote our industrial welfare.

"There will be many opportunities for this group to co-operate with the city officials in our endeavor to bring to Boston the kind and character of enterprises that will increase the general revenues of the city and the opportunities for employment of our citizens.

"The proper kind of advertising of our natural resources will be of immense benefit to the city and to all of us who realize that commerce is the life blood that keeps warm the fires of opportunity, provides employment and brings prosperity to our city and its citizens.

SEES GREATER CITY

"Running a close second to the need for industrial promotion is the need for spreading all over our country the natural recreational advantages that can be found in Boston and in the neighborhood of Boston.

"No other section of the country can offer to the recreation-minded the same opportunities for enjoyment and pleasure that can be found here in Boston and vicinity.

"Boston is the gateway to the beauties of New England. The mountains, the miles of seashore, the picturesque countryside, the sand dunes of the Cape—all can be reached from our city with little effort.

"I think Boston is going to go forward and be a greater city than ever before. I am going to devote my time and all the energies that have been granted me in that effort. I think if we all co-operate we will have a measure of success."

The youthful victor in the election just a week ago arrived back here shortly before noon, appearing much refreshed after his motor trip through the Berkshires and up into Vermont.

After telephoning his wife at their Brighton home, he called a barber to his suite in the Statler Hotel and was shaved, preparatory to making his address.

"I will make no announcement of appointments to my secretarial staff or to other posts until after Thanksgiving," he told the Boston Evening American in the hotel suite.

"That is definite. I have absolutely not considered the matter of appointments.

"Having been away for the past few days, I have been out of contact with affairs here. I will not start formulating plans until I return from the Washington conference of mayors later this month."

MANSFIELD TO AID

"Conditions are not going to be so black as they've been painter," said Mansfield. "The city of Boston is not on the brink of financial ruin.

"I think there are some serious problems the mayor-elect will have to deal with but not any more serious than they were four years ago when I assumed office.

"Being mayor of the city will require vision and experience. I know that Maurice Tobin has the first and that he will gain the second as he progresses. He will get my help and the help of others who have the interest of the city at heart.

BARS SALARY BOOSTS

"I want to say here and now, publicly, that there is nothing going to be done by me between now and the first of January that will embarrass the incoming mayor.

"Since election I have been besieged with requests from persons who either asked to be promoted or transferred, while others have cought increases in salaries.

"There will be no more general increases in salaries for employes of the city of Boston and no wholesale appointments. There may be an exception here and there, but none of an important nature.

"I want to leave the city free to Mayor-elect Tobin. I will have several conferences with him before he takes office, and he will be my guest in Washington next week at the conference of mayors of the United States.

"I want to pledge my hearty co-operation to him. I have had a happy four years as mayor, and I shall return to my law practice."

HASTENS HOME

Following the luncheon, Mayor-elect Tobin hastened to the house in Kinross road, Brighton, where he lives with his wife, their two young daughters and his mother.

This afternoon he paid a visit to his mother and father at their home in Calumet street, Roxbury, and he said he would again go out of town tonight, to return Friday afternoon, but he declined smilingly to reveal his destination.

On Friday night he and 600 of his supporters will take the New York boat and on Saturday afternoon they will attend the Army-Notre Dame football game in Manhattan.

From New York, Tobin will continue on to Washington, where he will meet Mayor Mansfield and with him attend the conference of mayors which opens Monday.

Other luncheon guests included Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole, representing Governor Hurley; former State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., generally credited with having swung the election to Tobin; Assistant City Clerk John Hynes; Associate Publisher John T. Lambert and Managing Editor John A. Malloy of the Boston Evening American; Harold G. Kern of the Hearst International Advertising Service; former School Committeeman William A. Reilly and ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

Also present as a member of the Advertising Club was Edward C. Donnelly, son-in-law of former Governor James M. Curley, one of the candidates defeated by Tobin in the majorality fight.

President Edmund Whitten of the club presided.

Basket Fund Gives Big Chance to Aid

Plea For Early and Hearty Support as 25th Annual Drive Opens

It takes so little, individually, to banish despair from souls that hunger for kindness—and bodies that hunger for food.

And yet it takes so much in the aggregate!

The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser have opened the annual Christmas Basket Fund drive for the 25th year in the hope that 1937 will see these hungers satisfied.

Here, then, is a clearing house of happiness where need and plenty meet. Let's get them together.

The circumstances of life are better this year for many than they were a year ago.

But for many also they are worse—one year worse.

IT'S UP TO YOU!

Most earnestly, the editor of the Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund asks your early and hearty support.

He asks that all persons who possibly can—from grownups down to children, from individuals to groups and clubs—send donations to him at 5 Winthrop square, Boston, or request the names and addresses of destitute families, to be provided for directly.

PENNIES IMPORTANT

He asks donations from pennies up, because children's pennies count amazingly when pooled, particularly when an understanding teacher has a Christmas Basket Fund box in her schoolroom for use of the youngsters in contributing.

In the quarter-century since this fund first started, thousands of needy families have been cared for and given at least a brief glimpse of happiness through the medium of Christmas baskets.

They have never forgotten those glorious Yuletide seasons when their childish appeals were answered and Christmas baskets from these newspapers were delivered in their homes.

These are men and women who do not have to be reminded that there are still other such homes in Boston at the present time—too many of them.

For you fortunates, however, who have never faded under the grind of poverty, in circumstances where a half slice of bread was a banquet, there must be a reminder.

You can aid the Christmas Basket Fund in two ways.

First, you can send a cash donation, large or small, to the Basket Fund Editor at 5 Winthrop square.

Second, you can take the names and addresses of one or more families on the Fund list, and see personally that each family receives a Christmas basket.

NO MONEY WASTED

If you cannot do it yourself, these newspapers are more than happy to do it for you. And your donations will be made go as far as possible.

Requests for aid this Christmas—for a meal on the one day when all should be happiness—already have begun to pour in on the Christmas Basket Fund editor.

The editor, in this connection, wishes to instruct applicants for baskets to obtain an endorsement from their priest, minister or rabbi, or from their doctor, which will eliminate confusion in distribution.

Applicants should also write their names and addresses plainly and be sure to include the number of persons in the family. This is most important.

Times this year are worse for many—better for more. Take that spare cash now, or even strain a bit, and send in a contribution to the Christmas Basket Fund.

Business College May Be 'For Men Only'

Fair co-eds are still co-eds at Boston University—but they won't be much longer at the college of business administration.

A ban on incoming co-eds to make the business college a place "for men only" was indicated today by the Boston University News, undergraduate weekly newspaper.

The reports were based on statements printed in the News attributed to President Daniel L. Marsh and Dean Everett W. Lord, dean of the college of business administration.

"If you want a college for men only, you will find it in the college of business administration—practically so now, and I trust absolutely hereafter."

And said Dean Lord:

"The college of business administration is not the proper place for girls and this has worried me all along . . . we have no facilities for them . . . otherwise we would be glad to have co-eds."

Quest Girl Tells Of 'Big Moment'

Helen Hughes "Terrified" as She First Enters on Sound Stage

By HELEN HUGHES

CHAPTER 21

The "big moment" to date of my Hollywood trip is now only a memory.

But what a nice one.

Let's go back and review the making of the test which I saw run yesterday and about which I told you yesterday.

You know I was so excited I hardly know what I told you about seeing the test run. Now I want to set down how it was made.

I'll just begin from the time I entered the set door, and if I repeat you will forgive me.

As I told you, I never had such a sinking feeling as when that phone rang.

TERRIFIED AT IT ALL

I can't remember one item concerning my walk to the set. The only thing that is clear in my mind is entering the door to the sound stage and being a bit terrified at sight of it all.

There were innumerable electricians. There was Director Freddie Wilcox, and a sound man, cameraman and assistant cameraman, make-up boy, hairdresser, and I have included here but a few.

The first thing that happened was a change of costume.

The suit, they decided, was a bit too heavy for the screen, and so they had me wear a cunning little Adrian dress of navy blue faille, with white collar, puffed sleeves and pleated white cuffs. It was entirely different from the suit, but equally as smart.

CUNNING BLUE HAT

Then there was a cunning blue hat and topcoat to match it, and blue shoes, gloves and bag.

It was ten o'clock when I arrived.

From ten until ten-thirty was spent in taking stills and getting the cameraman lined up for the scene.

I had lived this moment over in my mind so many times that I had a preconceived idea of everything that would happen.

But oh, how wrong I was!

For some reason or another, I thought that the test would take an hour, at the very outside.

Will you believe me when I tell you that it took from 10:30 until 20 minutes of 3.

They treated the whole thing just as they would a scene for a real picture.

Set-ups were changed frequently for close-ups, long and medium shots.

It was great fun, and after the first few minutes every trace of nervousness left me and I was as calm as though this had been happening to me every day of my life.

You know, I believe that it would help so much if every member of a motion picture audience was forced to take a screen test.

They would understand, so much better, what actors and actresses must go through to bring them entertainment.

Well, I just can't begin to tell you how sweet everyone was to me during the test.

Marie Blake, who portrayed the role of my mother, was so understanding and patient.

Director Wilcox left no stone unturned to make me give a performance which would meet with his high standard of what constitutes a "good test."

SET 'BEAUTIFUL'

The cameraman lit the scene so carefully—and by the way. You should have seen the set.

It was perfectly beautiful.

The walls were white and paneled and interesting floral prints and modern pictures adorned them.

At one side was a fireplace, and over it a mantle containing interesting ceramics in a soft shade of dusty rose.

The windows were covered with white Venetian blinds, and the carpeting was in a grayed tone of green.

I asked Director Wilcox why, when the pictures aren't in color, they go to such pains to make the color scenes so perfect and harmonious.

He explained that it was for the psychological effect that colors had over the people in a scene.

I'M HUNGRY

Needless to state, when the test was finally over, I was awfully hungry.

The thoughts of taking this test had literally "done things" to my appetite for several days, so with that completely off my mind it turned, automatically, to thoughts of food.

It was wonderful.

And now I can sit back and worry as to the outcome of the test, only I have made up my mind to leave the "worry" out of it.

When one looks around and sees the hundreds and hundreds, and then a few hundred more girls in Hollywood, one realizes that it is only in a single case in a thousand where Fame really goes "a courtin'."

But it has been wonderful, every single minute of it, and it has been an opportunity and an experience that will last me the rest of my life.

I'm so thankful for it, and for all of those people who made it possible.

Survey Paving Way to Court Expansion

Leaders Believe Plan For 11 Judges May Win Approval

(Copyright 1937)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (INS) — A nationwide congressional survey of conditions in federal courts during the past summer will result in early submission of two and possibly three constitutional amendments, administration leaders predicted today.

The survey was conducted jointly by the Senate and House Judiciary Committees. Administration spokesmen predicted Congress at the special session will submit constitutional amendments, proposing:

1—Expansion of the Supreme Court to 11 members including one chief justice and 10 associate justices, each assigned to supervision of a particular circuit.

2—Voluntary retirement of Supreme Court justices at the age of 70 years and compulsory retirement at the age of 75.

3 (Possibly)—The Supreme Court be restricted to invalidating acts of Congress only by two-thirds majority votes (6 to 3), except in cases arising under the bill of rights.

LEADERS CONFIDENT

Administration leaders were confident the first two proposals would be approved by Congress, since leaders of the successful battle against President Roosevelt's Supreme Court enlargement bill at the time announced they would favor submission of these questions to the people.

There may be a contest over the third proposal, touching constitutional decisions, because of widespread belief in the majority rule that has guided the court since its foundation.

Senator Ashurst (D) of Arizona, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, meanwhile informed International News Service he proposed to ask the present membership of the Supreme Court to consult with the two congressional committees on the constitutional issues. Ashurst said:

"We will ask the Supreme Court justices to be so kind as to consult with the committees on these questions."

INCREASE JUDGES

A like invitation by the committee last spring at the height of the battle over the President's bill was politely declined. It led though to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes writing Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, a letter, strongly denouncing the presidential plan.

Hughes was joined by associate Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis.

The joint survey will lead to enactment of legislation, increasing the number of federal judges in districts where their services are required. The committee will be guided, too, by recommendations of the attorney-general and of the judicial conference of federal judges.

Wife Dead, Law Tangles Hubby

Randolph Man Seized On Support Charge

Joseph Gschwendtner, 44, of Richmond, Va., and formerly of Randolph, found himself in the middle of a legal tangle today when he returned to visit his former Randolph home, only to be arrested on a four-year-old warrain charging him with non-support of his wife and daughter.

The tangle comes fro mthe fact that his wife is now dead, and his daughter is now of age. Even the police have no idea what the legal solution will be—but the warrant was on file in the Boston police department and they had to arrest him.

The arrest came after Gschwendtner was recognized by Chief of Police Patrick McDonell of Randolph, who notified police in Boston, where the warrant was issued. The tangle will be ironed out in court tomorrow.

Envoy Bullitt Plans Visit to Warsaw

PARIS, Nov. 9 (AP)—The United States embassy said today Ambassador William C. Bullitt would go to Warsaw November 13 to visit Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., United States ambassador to Poland. The embassy said the visit had no political significance. Bullitt's aides said he would call on Colonel Joseph Beck, Polish foreign minister.

Trial of Dalhover Speeded by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The justice department said today James Dalhover, diminutive Brady "trigger man," would be tried in federal court at Hammond, Ind., for the slaying of State Policeman Paul Minneman last May 25.

Assistant Attorney-General Brien McMahon said Dalhover would be arraigned next Monday, and that his trial would follow "as speedily as possible thereafter."

Lewis Medbury, Stage Star, Dies

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 9—Lewis N. C. Medbury, 56, veteran actor, today was dead at a Portland hospital to which he was taken from his summer home on Great Diamond Island.

Medbury had been on the stage since his graduation from Racine College until his retirement in 1931. He had played in stock and had a leading part in the New York run of Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen."

Jailed in Lieu of Bail

Ohio Pair Held In $4000 Here

Ruth Manning, 32, and John J. McHale, 39, both of Toledo, O., were held in $2000 each today on continuance until Saturday in municipal court on charges of illegal possession of a revolver and two hypodermic needles.

Judge Abraham Cohen ordered them remanded to the city prison in lieu of bail.

Miss Manning pleaded not guilty to illegal possession of a revolver and of removal of the serial numbers of a revolver.

McHale pleaded guilty to illegal possession of two hypodermic needles and not guilty to removal of serial numbers on a revolver.

They were arrested Friday at a lodging house in the South End.

P. O. Men to Aid Job Census

Postmaster Peter F. Tague of the Boston postal district today called on all postal employes to lend aid in the national unemployment census in the registration of unemployed persons in the district.

Success of this undertaking depends to a great extent on postal employes, Tague stressed at a meeting of superintendents of all branches.

Letter carriers will distribute unemployment report cards to every household and answer all questions. Other places mentioned for distribution are commercial and apartment hotels, rooming houses, municipal lodging houses, missions, transient shelters and transient lodging houses.

Rand Work Told By Bergoff Son

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 9 (AP)—Earl Bergoff, secretary in his father's strikebreaking agency, testified today the elder Bergoff told him he had been hired by James H. Rand, Jr., president of Remington-Rand, Inc., to do "missionary work" in some of the company's plants.

Young Bergoff explained in federal court, where his father, Pearl and Rand are on trial charged with violating the so-called "anti-strike-breaking" law, that "missionary work" meant:

"Interviewing people—asking them to go back to work and submit their differences to arbitration instead of staying out in the street out of work."

"Does that include propaganda?" the witness was asked by Charles H. Carr, Federal prosecutor.

"Yes," Bergoff replied.

The two men face charges they violated the law by transporting 57 "millwrights" from New York to Middletown with the intent of interfering with peaceful picketing of the plant by striking employes.

Man Held in $2400 Roslindale Holdup

West Roxbury police today were questioning a man, said to be an ex-convict with a record of two terms in State's Prison, tentatively identified as one of the participants in the Parks Snow store robbery in which $2400 was taken last week in Roslindale.

The man, according to Policemen Vaughn A. Hewey and Fred G. Murphy, has been identified by two girl employes from the store. He was found working and was taken into custody at Boston Fish Pier after one of the women from the store identified police photographs.

Mayor Sullivan's Lead Cut to 6 In Worcester

One Precinct Recount Puts Bennett on Line of Victory

WORCESTER, Nov. 9—Mayor John S. Sullivan teetered on the edge of political defeated today when a recount of one precinct in Worcester's contested mayoralty election slashed his lead over William E. Bennett, his Republican opponent, from 25 to 6.

Precinct 8, of Ward 1, the first of the city's 76 precincts to be retabulated by checkers, gave Bennett a corrected total of 558, a gain of 29 votes, and Sullivan 199, a gain of 10. The original totals were: Bennett, 529; Sullivan, 189.

PICKS UP 40 VOTES

The recount disclosed that election day tally keepers had erroneously credited William Ahearn, Socialist, with 40 votes, which rightfully belong to Bennett.

The revised figures in this precinct subdivision were: Bennett, 40; Sullivan, 1; Ahearn, none. The original tally was: Ahearn, 40, Bennett, 10; Sullivan, none.

The vote recapitulation marked the latest development in a bitter fight by the Republican and Democratic organizations for control of the city government.

SULLIVAN'S SECOND LOSS

The loss suffered by Sullivan in the first precinct recounted marks the second time his margin of apparent victory has been chopped down.

On electio nnight a first report placed him in the winning column by 45 votes. A preliminary re-check reduced this figure by 20 a few hours later.

The recount is being conducted under the supervision of City Clerk Malcolm E. Midgley. Representing Sullivan as counsel is former Congressman F. O'Connell. Bennett's counsel is Frank B. Hall, former Republican state chairman.

Wife Slain, Man Shot in Triangle

went to the Birdmen's Club, an aviation organization, and then we went to the home of a new member on Sunset Boulevard, I do not remember his name," police quoted Wright as saying.

"Afterwards my wife, Kimmel and three or four other people went to the Hollywood Athletic Club for dinner.

ROUND OF NIGHT SPOTS

"After that we stopped at a few places for drinks. Then we went to Clara Bow's 'It' cafe and we had a couple of drinks there.

"Then Kimmel suggested that we go to my house.

"My wife and I drove over in my car and Kimmel drove in his.

"We got there shortly after midnight. After I got there, I felt dopey. Maybe it was the drinks.

"I went into an adjoining room and lay down on a davenport. I dropped off to sleep.

"Then I heard a sort of commotion. I got up and walked out. I heard Kimmel's voice.

"Then I walked into the room and saw Evelyn and my best friend in a close embrace. I just said, 'Well!'

"Evelyn laughed and then she kissed Kimmel again, right in front of me.

"Everything went white. I ran into my bedroom and got my German Luger. I came out pumping it. I didn't aim particularly at anybody. I just kept shooting."

FLEES INTO STREET

Wright said he left his wife, who was 32, dead on the floor and Kimmel near death and fled into the street.

The couple's three-year-old daughter, Helen, and a maid were in the house when the shooting occurred.

Wright and Kimmel are two of the best-known figures in aviation in the West. Police were told they were constantly together.

Dog Shatters Court's Calm

'Quiet' Lynn Pet Has Fun For a While

The trouble in Lynn court today was that when Mrs. Helen Whelan of Shorey avenue, Lynn, took her big collie dog to court, "to show the judge how nice and quiet he is," she forgot to tell the dog.

Banished to the probation officer's office, where he was tied with a rope, the collie slipped his collar and made a break for liberty, weaving and slithering through office workers and corridor throngs and creating not a little fuilabaloo.

Eventually, he was captured by policemen and court attendants and marched back in disgrace to the probation office, where he was tied more firmly and left to sulk.

Meanwhile, Judge Reeve explained that he wasn't interested in the dog himself, but in the fact that he wasn't licensed, Mrs. Whelan being one of a dozen dog owners summoned for that alleged reason today.

They all were given until Saturday to procure licenses and police said about 200 more summonses were out.

Hunt Man Riding West, Dog May Have Rabies

By wire and radio the Malden board of health today sought to warn a former Malden druggist, en route to California by automobile, that his dog may be afflicted with rabies, possibly endangering his owner's life.

The druggist, George Ware, bound for his home in Los Angeles, left Malden Sunday night after spending the week-end as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Percy S. Alden of Winthrop park, Malden.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Alden were ordered by the Malden board of health today to undergo the Pasteur treatment for minor bites by a stray mongrel dog which the Aldens had taken into their home.

This animal became sick yesterday and was taken by Mrs. Alden to the Angel Memorial Hospital where it died. An examination disclosed the dog had rabies.

Investigation by Albert M. Kelleher, agent for the Malden board of health, revealed that Ware's dog had played with the mongrel and fear was held that the animal might have contracted rabies.

Telegrams were dispatched to points where it was believed Ware might stop, advising him to have his dog examined for rabies. Radio stations were also notified.

At the same time the Los Angeles health department was informed of the situation in case all efforts to reach Ware en route failed.

THE FIGHT FOR HONOR SET NO. 6—Human Problem No. 32

Danger confronted them suddenly, unexpectedly.
They were two nice young people, a boy and a girl, sitting talking in a parked automobile.
Without warning, a rough-looking stranger poked a gun in their faces.
"Get out of that car and get out quick," he snarled. His breath was rank with liquor. The boy at the wheel took a desperate chance. He kicked at the gun. But the bandit stepped back and shot him through the chest.
It seemed robbery wasn't the motive of the attack. For now the gunman dragged the girl from the car. Should she plead—or fight? Odds were overwhelmingly against her. She made her decision instantly.

A. She beat her attacker off with a slipper heel.

B. She got rid of him by giving him a diamond bracelet.

Convicted of Taking Two Watches, $350 From Kramers

A young man who preferred ready cash to matrimony was today convicted of stealing two watches and $350 from the family of Philip Kramer of Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, important union executive and father of the prospective bride.

The defendants, Myron Horowitz, 29, of Scranton, Pa., was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction on each of the two charges of larceny by Judge Francis J. Good in Suffolk superior court. The judge ruled the sentences are to run concurrently.

MET IN PENNSYLVANIA

Kramer is vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and manager of the Joint Board of Trade, Boston affiliate of the international union.

His daughter, Sybil, blonde and lovely, met Horowitz at the Unity House, union-operated hotel at East Stroudsburg, Pa. Love blossomed from the meeting and the couple were engaged, it was testified in court.

As a prelude to marriage, Miss Kramer invited her fiance to visit the home of her parents. Everything went smoothly until Kramer authorized the young man to take his automobile to Pennsylvania for a "trade-in," the court was told.

Before leaving, Horowitz persuaded Kramer's wife, Anna, to cash a check for $350 for him; Horowitz had gone when the check "bounced," according to testimony.

In addition to the car, it was stated, Horowitz also vanished with a watch the girl had loaned him to replace his own, which had been damaged, and another one Kramer had requested him to take to New York for repair.

No word came from the missing suitor until some weeks later, when he allegedly wrote to Miss Kramer from California, contritely admitting his guilt and offering to come back and face punishment.

Miss Kramer and her parents attended most of the trial sessions. But her father was the only member of the family in court when the jury's sealed verdict was opened by Judge Good.

While finding the defendant guilty of stealing the watches and also the money, the jury acquitted him on an automobile theft charge.

Duchess Deaf To a $50 Call

Bans Telephone Talk With Girls' Club

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (INS)—At a cost of $50, a pretty little blonde from Baltimore, Md., Mitzi O'Neill, who is president of the Wally Simpson Girls' Club, of that city, put in a transatlantic telephone call, to the Duchess of Windsor.

Miss O'Neill wanted to urge the Duchess to come to America. The Duchess refused to take the call.

But the little Baltimorean, who had come to New York, as official representative of the club, to greet the Duchess, was not discouraged. She sat down and wrote a cable:

"Sorry you would not talk to me over the phone. The Wally Simpson Girl's Club of Baltimore wants to beg you to reconsider plans to come to America. Our one hundred girls of Baltimore, voicing the feelings of all true Baltimoreans, are going to greet you at the boat. Please come."

Fire Gives 'Em Joy; Embarrassment Out

Copyright, 1937

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9 (INS)—Hollywood staged a bonfire today and a sigh of relief went up from certain well-known stars on the Warner Brothers lot.

In the presence of a studio attorney, 450 early-day still pictures taken of the stars when they were newcomers on the lot, went up in smoke.

For a week, the files of the art department had been carefully searched to locate all shots that might be embarrassing to the players if they found their way into print today. Emphasis was on out-of-date bathing suits and undignified poses.

4 Warrants for Winthrop Man

Police of the Mattapan Station today obtained four warrants for the arrest of Samuel L. Rantz, 29, of Pearl avenue, Winthrop, who complained to Commissioner Timilty he had been roughly handled by an officer on Ballou avenue, Dorchester.

The warrants, issued on complaint of Patrolman Salvatore Fiorillo of the Mattapan Station, charge profanity, operating an automobile so as to endanger, refusing to show an officer his license and assault and battery on Officer Fiorillo.

It is alleged by Fiorillo that Rantz was racing his car on Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester; drove his car on the sidewalk following a chase, refused to show his license, used profanity and attempted to kick the officer when the latter tried to pull him out of the car.

Fiorillo alleged he suffered a broken finger in the struggle. He is now off duty.

Tax Board O. K.'s Capital Gains Law Changes

Treasury Agreeable to Revision Asked by Business

WASHINGTON, Nov 9 (AP)—A House tax sub-committee virtually agreed today to modify loss provisions of the capital gains tax, target of complaints from business and financial men.

One member said there was "no opposition" to an amendment which would permit carr-over of losses. Under such a system, losses might be used to offset gains over a period of a year or two.

The treasury was reported to have offered no resistance to such an alteration, even though it would cost some revenue that might have to be made up elsewhere.

The sub-committee asked the treasury to submit estimates on how much the capital gains tax would yield if ny of half a dozen suggestions for modification were approved.

While these estimates are being prepared, the legislators will go back to a study of the undistributed profits tax. Chairman Vinson (D.) of Kentucky said the Treasury would submit data tomorrow to be used as a basis for possible improvement of that levy.

Among the additional changes proposed in the capital gains tax, it was disclosed, were imposition of a flat tax. Some of the rates mentioned—in an entirely tentative manner—were 15, 20, 22½ and 25 per cent.

Prior to 1934, capital gains were taxed at a flat 12½ per cent.

Under the present system, the gains are included in an individual's taxable income. The amount of the gains included for tax purposes varies from 100 to 30 per cent, depending on how long the assets on which the profits are taken are held.

Widow of Sollis Found Hanged

MARSHFIELD, Nov 9—The body of Mrs. Lillian Sollis, 62, widow of Elmer C. Sollis, one-time president of the now defunct Roxbury Trust Company, was found hanging from a tree in the woods about two miles from Marshfield today.

Mrs. Sollis had been missing since August, when she disappeared from the home of Mrs. Sandy Sherman, with whom she had been living since the death of her husband last spring. Suspicion at that time was expressed she may have taken her own life.

Search was made of the ocean front, of local cranberry bogs and surrounding wooded areas, but to no avail.

Early today a hunter, going through the woods off Parsonage road, found Mrs. Sollis' body, still hanging. The spot is only a short distance from a seldom-visited summer camp belonging to the Shermans.

Medical Examiner Thomas Alexander, of Scituate, was notified.

Tobin, Lodge Scaled Heights By Widely Divergent Paths

One Born Into Home Of Poor Parents; Other Wealthy

By T. B. WHEELER
Boston Evening American Staff Writer

Eyes of the nation are being focused on two young men of Massachusetts, whose careers run strangely parallel in some respects and sharply divergent in others.

Maurice J. Tobin and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. Destiny seems to have chosen them to go far. One is "of the people"—that titanic boiling-pot that brews so much of America's greatness; one "of the purple"—aristocracy, wealth, the powerful silken-socked circle.

Already the talk of the street, not only in Boston but even beyond the confines of the state, is of the heights that Tobin may attain. A merchant said, the day after election:

"Well, if he 'keeps his nose clean' there'll be no stopping him now. He can probably be governor next. Then it'll be the Senate, or perhaps the vice-presidency, even the White House. Who knows? He's got the world by the tail with a downhill pull. All he's got to do is not rock the boat."

BOTH SCALED HEIGHTS

Of the other man, they've been saying since last November:

"Watch him climb! It won't be long now until the White House will be Lodge's lodgings!"

Note the parallel in the lives of the state's two most recently outstanding citizens:

Both are young—a "boy Senator" and a "boy Mayor."

Each held a comparatively minor elective office before he made his great plunge. Lodge was in the legislature; Tobin on the school committee. In one step, each won high position.

And, by a quirk of the political fates, both used the same "ladder" to scale to success—the defeat of James M. Curley. Both defeats were decisive.

BUTT OF RIDICULE

Both men were ridiculed during their campaigns because of their "youth" and inexperience with public affairs, their unfamiliarity with politics. Both showed they are exceptionally well versed in the "art" of politics, in inspiring confidence in themselves, in winning votes.

For once, the memory of the electorate was not short. Speeches of just the opposite tenor that their critic had made when he, too, was young were remembered, and his words rose up to smite him.

Both young men are earnest, energetic, ambitious, sincere, vital; both intensely desirous of bettering the lot of humanity, although the means they utilize to achieve a goal may be as widely different as are their antecedents.

Both are "family men" in all that good old-fashioned phrase denotes; and each man's wife and kindred manifest a sort of delightful approval of his accomplishments.

ORIGIN DIFFERS

By another incongruity of the gods (or demons) that direct political destinies, and one that doubtless made them chuckle, Lodge, staunchly Republican, owes his election over a versatile Democratic leader in an overwhelmingly Democratic year to votes of Democrats, and Tobin, as staunch a Democrat, owes his victory over that same leader to Republican assistance.

Alike as their public careers thus far have been, the two men spring from strata of the social system as far apart as Boston and Babylon.

Lodge, scion of the one of the First Families, had every advantage of environment, education, luxury, travel, social association. He follows a trail blazed by his illustrious grandsire—but the mere fact that he is proving himself worthy to tread that path by already having won a certain degree of national renown as a forward looking liberal, is no small feather in his cap.

Tobin's high road toward the top, on the other hand, has been hewn with painstaking endeavor by himself. His forbears were Irish immigrants who cast their fortunes with the land the Lodges, Cabots, Lowells and others helped to create.

His was a family nearer to poverty than to prosperity. What higher education he acquired came largely from night classes and from increasing his folks' electric light bill.

But his heritage, too, came from Erin's sod, a heritage of eloquence, of fortitude, of that audacious quality of fight which is the driving-force, the sparkplug of success.

Neither man, of course, has yet attained his heyday. There are no limits to the service they can, if they so will it, render to their state and their nation.

The road ahead to the peak looks free now of any barriers they cannot surmount unless—one should oppose the other for some elective prize!

Then the fur would fly. Obviously one would fail . . . the man "of the people" or the man "of the purple." Which of the two young men of Massachusetts would survive?

Small wonder, then, that politicians everywhere watch their careers, some with hope, some with apprehension born of the writing on the wall. Watching, too, are many persons who crave no part of politics, but who keep abreast of the times. They all see one picture.

They see youth in the saddle, courage high, riding on to greater glory.

Malden, Woburn Election Duels Settled Today

Mayor of Chelsea Is Unopposed in Other Event

Voters in three Greater Boston cities went to the polls today to choose mayors and other municipal officers.

In Woburn, where the polls opened at 6 a. m., a heavy vote was predicted due to the particularly heated campaigns waged by City Clerk William E. Kane, Democrat, and Alderman Kendall L. Johnson, Republican, rival candidates for the mayoralty.

In Malden, where the polls opened at 8 a. m., a similarly strenuous election day was forecast. Here Mayor John D. Devir is running for re-election against Edward J. Bushell, former assistant district attorney of Middlesex County.

LIGHT VOTE IN CHELSEA

Chelsea, in comparison with Woburn and Malden, promised a quiet and light vote, due to the fact that Mayor Edward J. Voke, running for re-election, is unopposed. This is the first time in the history of the city that there has been no contest.

Voke was opposed in the primaries by Edwin J. Cronin, Northeastern law student. Cronin, however, failed to receive the necessary 300 votes to place him on Chelsea's non-partisan ballot.

The polls in Chelsea, Woburn and Malden close at 8 p. m.

VIGOROUS BATTLES

In Woburn, the big battle centers around the fight between Kane and Johnson, son of former Mayor Harold P. Johnson.

Malden's mayoralty campaign likewise has been turbulent. Mayor Devir finished only 468 votes ahead of Bushell in the primaries. Another fight centers around three vacancies on the school committee.

Interest in Chelsea is centered upon Mrs. Mary V. Cronin, past president of Chelsea Post auxiliary, American Legion, the first woman candidate for alderman-at-large in the city's history.

Gen. Denison Dead

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press)—Major-General Septimus J. A. Dennison, 78, C. M. G., is dead here today. He served as aide de camp to the Earl of Aberdeen during his term as Governor-General of Canada.

Career Aim Is Outlined By Filene

Merchant Explains Success Points to College Women

The pay's the thing, Lincoln Filene, well known Boston merchant, told members of the American Association of University Women.

Speaking at a meeting in the College Club, on Commonwealth avenue, Mr. Filene declared that college students should shape their studies for a definite career after their second year at school. He said in this connection:

"This does not mean specific vocational or professional preparation in a liberal arts college. It does mean direction toward a field of activity involving employment at a compensation."

The merchant said his experience had convinced him that a broad liberal arts educations so directed, plus actual business practice, was the best success formula.

He advocated formation of a vocational bureau in college, which would assist the graduate in securing employment under expert guidance, rather than allow him to drift for himself.

"It is important to realize the difference between a profession which is a career and a specific job," he said.

Lodge Outlines Reform Plans

WORCESTER, Nov. 9—United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., will seek reform of tax policy, the social security act and the monetary policy when Congress opens next week.

This he told members of the Republican Business and Professional Women's Club of Central Massachusetts at a meeting at the Hotel Bancroft.

Senator Lodge declared he believed it possible to get the same benefits from social security without paying nearly as much in payroll taxes.

Lodge also said that 25,000 New England shoe workers face unemployment as a result of the administration's plan for a reciprocal trade agreement with Czechoslovakia.

Labor Studies Jurisdiction Over Industry

Parley Debates Over Overlapping Groups Of CIO, AFL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Peace negotiators of the A. F. of L. and the CIO agreed tentatively today that the industrial type of organization shall prevail in a group of industries where the "vertical unions" have predominated.

As discussions of a settlement were resumed, however, leaders of both camps said a definite list of the fields where the Committee for Industrial Organization would have exclusive jurisdiction had not been prepared.

"There is not much difficulty in spotting coal mining, for example."

Charles P. Howard, CIO secretary, said the textile industry "presents a little different problem," because the conferees had to decide whether their agreement in that field would affect only manufacturing points or whether it would extend to producers.

Howard expressed the opinion that if an agreement in all fields is reached it would be sent to a joint AFL-CIO convention for ratification. He recalled, however, that "the other side says it has power to negotiate here — that is what they say."

The negotiators plunged immediately today into a discussion of the advisability of referring to subcommittees the particularly difficult problems of "spotting" industries for one or the other organizations.

Doherty Votes, Feted by Cole

After voting in the Woburn municipal election, Daniel J. Doherty, national commander of the American Legion, was feted today at a luncheon given in his honor at the Algonquin Club by Adjutant General Charles H. Cole.

Doherty is leaving tonight for Washington to take part in Armistice Day ceremonies at the Arlington National Cemetery and Silver Springs, Md.

From Washington he will go to the Legion headquarters in Indianapolis to attend meeting of the executive council.

President Sets Day Of Thanks

Hails Nation's Peace In Proclaiming Nov. 25 Holiday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt called upon the country today to give thanks on November 25 for "abundant harvests and the blessing of stable employment" to many people.

In a Thanksgiving Day proclamation, he called attention also to strife and war threats in many parts of the world, while the United States enjoys peace and cherishes "no selfish designs against other nations."

"We have been fortunate," declares the proclamation, "in devoting our energies and our resources to constructive purposes and useful works. We have sought to fulfill our obligation to use our national heritage by common effort for the common good.

"Let us, therefore, on the day appointed, forego our usual occupations and, in our accustomed places of worship, each in his own way, humbly acknowledge the mercy of God from Whom comes every good and perfect gift."

Probe N. Y. Vote Count Fraud

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Four canvassers were in jail today and 4500 ballots were impounded as officials pressed an investigation into charges of fraud in tabulating New York City's proportional representation election of city councilmen a week ago.

The canvassers — two Democrats and two Republicans — were ordered held for the grand jury by Sylvester Ryan, acting district attorney of the Bronx, who began his own inquiry into reports of sabotage in vote counting.

He impounded the ballots, he said, after a handwriting expert discovered they had been changed since the count started.

French Air Display

ISTRES, FRANCE, Nov. 9 (AP)—Seventy-six military planes massed today for a takeoff in the first annual aerial maneuvers to the nation's colonies to show them the progress of French aviation.

State of the Nation

The Stretch-Out System

Scene: A Broadway restaurant. Four gents, Tom, Dick, Harry, and Moe, seated at a table.

Damon Runyon

Tom—I see where the duke and his missus ent coming to this country, after all. The guy that they was gonna be around with over here turned out to be a wrongo.

Dick—What'd he do?

Tom—He invented the stretch-out system.

Harry—Say, I been reading about that in the papers. Whass the stretch-out system, anyway?

Dick—What people?

Tom—Why, any people that work.

Moe—I gotta brother name of Simon that I bet it won't make work more.

Harry—How does that stretch-out system make people work more? What does it do to them?

Dick—How much faster?

Tom—I don't know how much faster, but it makes them work faster. Anyway, thass what it says in the papers.

* * *

Harry—Whass working faster got to do with the duke and his missus coming to this country? They don't work, do they?

Moe—Neither does my brother Simon.

Tom—Well, you see, the guy that invented the stretch-out system is the duke's pal, and he was gonna entertain them when they came over by showing them how the Amurrikins live, and that would have been a big knock to them with the working people.

Dick—You mean the people that the stretch-out system made work faster?

Tom—Thass right. So the working people tipped the duke not to come over and be seen around with that guy. They tipped him off that the Amurrikins would give him the back of their necks if he went around with that guy.

* * *

Harry—I don't understand it yet. Is that stretch-out thing a machine that does something to people to make them work faster, or what?

Tom—No, it ent no machine. It's an idea.

Harry—Well, that ent anything new, is it? My boss has had an idea for years that I ought to work faster, but he can't make me do it when he ent watching me, can he?

Dick—Say, what was that guy's angle in making people work faster, anyway? If you work until you get something done, thass fast enough ent it?

Tom—Well, he made money out of it.

Dick—Oh, it's a racket, hay? Well, I ent gonna kick about that. Everybody's entitled to a racket if they can think one up.

* * *

Moe—I wish my brother Simon had a racket. Maybe he'd send in something to the folks once in a while. My brother Simon is a bum.

Dick—I don't like the way it sounds.

Harry—I don't neither. Why don't a guy like that mind his own business? Suppose my boss hears of something that will make me work faster? He'd tire me out in no time.

Moe—I bet nobody's gonna think up anything to tire my brother Simon out. He's already tired.

Harry—Still, I don't see how an invention could make me work faster unless my boss kept watching me all the time and he's too busy watching his partner to do that.

* * *

Dick—That system might be a good idea around this joint. I ordered a sturgeon sandwitch half an hour ago, and where is it?

Harry—I want to hear more about that thing. Is the duke in on it?

Tom—Of course he ent in. He didden have anything to do with it.

Dick—Why, what does he care if people work faster or not?

Harry—Well, I was just asking. I want you to explain this stretch-out system to me so I can understand it better. I can't quite figure it out.

Tom—Well, I don't know much about it myself except what I read in the papers and they don't seem to know much about it either.

Harry—Well, who does know about it?

Tom—I guess nobody except the guy that invented it.

Moe—All I gotta say is I'd like to see that guy and ask him if he'd like to bet his system can make my brother Simon work faster. I make my brother Simon 1 to 10 over anything that anybody thinks will make him work at all.

Hallin Girl Wins First Step of Vindication

Saugus School Board To Be Probed by 5 Townsmen

Blonde and beautiful Isabelle Hallin, ousted from her dramatics teaching job at Saugus high school on charges that she served cocktails to her students, today won an important step in her fight for vindication.

A town meeting last night voted to appoint a committee of five to conduct a thorough investigation of this community's school system and the school committee which refused to rename Miss Hallin to her post.

Moderator Herbert P. Mason was instructed by the 150 voters present to submit his committee's report before the annual meeting next March.

Isabelle, who recently took a series of screen tests and has engaged in stage and radio work as a result of publicity caused by her case, was present at the meeting, where her father, Fred Hallin, spoke in her behalf.

His plea for "justice" was endorsed by the Rev. Harold T. Hanley, Episcopal church rector, and other prominent residents. Several members of the school committee attended.

The ousted teacher awaiting the results of the movie tests, did not participate in the proceedings.

Trio Win Fame In Australia

Three young Bostonians today won fame and a five-year theatrical contract—10,000 miles from home.

The Bostonians, Maurice Goldsmith, of Roxbury, Barnett B. Lester, of Beacon street, and Gus Leonard, of Somerville, were notified from Sydney, Australia, that their musical numbers have been adopted for the "Broadway Vanities of 1938," sponsored by Sir Benjamin Fuller, the "Ziegfeld of Australia" and managing director of more than 50 theaters.

Recordings and sheet music of the tunes, written in collaboration with Albert Coleman, musical director of the A. B. Marcus revue, were made and sent to the three tunesmiths, who have been asked to arrange annual numbers for the next five years. One of the numbers, "Gypsy Dream," was played by the Sydney Symphony Orchestra in a program dedicated to the memory of George Gershwin at the Sydney Town Hall.

Cows to Pasture On Common Again

Historic Boston Common, which in Colonial days was the first settelers' cow pasture, will revert back 300 years Sunday when three cows and several calves will be pastured on its grassy slopes.

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield granted the permission in connection with observance of National Milk Week, which begins next Sunday.

Students Threaten 'Big Apple' Strike

KEARNY, N. J., Nov. 9 (AP)—A campus "bill of rights," legalizing the "big apple" and "trucking" on the dance floor, was drawn up today by a group of strike-threatening Kearny High school students for presentation to Principal G. G. Mankey.

Insurgent leaders charged the school administration was "old-fashioned" and demanded a greater voice for students in school affairs.

Ronnie's Pitch Luckily Wild

So Girl Returns $66 To His Mother

Five-year-old Ronnie Patnaude, of Jefferson avenue, Chelsea, who throws money away like water, today had an 11-year-old girl's honesty to thank for saving his mother the round sum of $66.

Ronnie, according to police, threw a purse belonging to his mother, Mrs. Harold Patnaude, from a window. He aimed at an ash barrel, but missed, and the handbag containing the $66 was found by Ruth Tully, 11, a neighbor.

Ruth, who saw a $1 bill sticking from the bag, gave it to her father, Police Inspector James J. Tully.

When Inspector Tully brought Mrs. Patnaude her purse, she discovered for the first time that it had been lost. Ronnie cleared up the mystery, however. Grinning, he giggled one word. It was:

"Ash barrel!"

Bond for the defendants, William H. Meier, 41, uncle of young Johnson, and Leo W. Masterson, 29, was fixed at $20,000 each and their preliminary hearing set for November 17.

Johnson, in a serious condition in St. Louis County Hospital, said his uncle had made accusations against him involving a young woman.

He declared Meier and Masterson drove him to an isolated road in the country, forced him out of the car, bound him with a rope, and mutilated him.

Rivals Outcrying Cape Town Crier

PROVINCETOWN, Nov. 9—For crying out louder than the official town crier, youthful hotel and restaurant barkers faced general condemnation here today.

Shouting their wares to incoming tourists, the Board of Trade was told, the youthful barkers virtually drown out 67-year-old Amos Kubik, only town crier left in the country.

Amos tries hard, it was declared. He calls his news about tides, weather, city notices and other matters of import, but his younger rivals outnumber him to the point of frustration.

The Board voted to request officials to curb the commercial callers and give Amos a chance.

Meanwhile, just to show his lungs are still in good order, Amos will soon visit Boston to sell Governor Hurley the first Anti-Tuberculosis drive seal. He will wear his customary Pilgrim costume.

Josephine Perry, Florence Forbes Hold Social Spotlight

By BETTY ALDEN

TODAY'S debutante parties are so typical of the Boston aristocratic background that a moving picture director would enjoy the opportunity of seeing them to take notes for future productions depicting New England society . . .

This afternoon, Josephine Perry is having a tea at her parents' fine old home on Marlborough street . . . and few movie actresses would form a more striking tableau than this tall, attractive brunette as she stands in the receiving line beside her mother, Mrs. Arthur Perry, acknowledging the best wishes of all her guests . . .

JOSEPHINE PERRY

Jodie, as she is popularly known, is wearing a beautiful gown of golden yellow tulle with a very full skirt and a tight bodice with a low square neckline and puff sleeves . . . A corsage of orchids will be the only contrasting color in her outfit and her mother has chosen a lovely creation of brown tulle embroidered with small gold figures . . .

Rebecca Perry, the hostess' elder sister, heads the group of pourers and several cousins will be on hand to help out at the tea table . . . Priscilla Hall, Agnes Perry and Helen Perry are the cousins, and among the debutante pourers are Catherine Little, who made her debut last Friday night at a dance; Mary Amory Eliot, Hope Osborne, Elizabeth Motley, Joan Shaw, Anne Motley and Katharine Jackson . . .

Also pouring are Polly Morrill, who was presented to society at a large Sunday afternoon tea, day before yesterday at the Dedham Country and Polo Club; Susan Storey, who will be hostess at a small dinner party Thursday evening, November 18, preceding the dance at The Country Club for Nancy Newell and Ann Capper . . . Also Phoebe Fitz, Marjorie Prince, Jane Pickman, Isabel Farley, Natica Bates, Olivia Vogel and Harriet Brooks . . .

Florence Forbes To Be Honored Tonight

THIS EVENING our friend the movie director could find few more perfect settings for a debutante ball than the estate of William Cameron Forbes in Norwood . . . which will be the scene of a large dance in honor of Mr. Forbes' niece, Florence Forbes of Milton . . .

The brick mansion, set far back from the road in the seclusion of a grove of trees, has a wide front porch and terrace with imposing white Corinthian columns . . . and faces Mr. Forbes' well kept private polo field which forms an unusually wide and unbroken stretch of close cropped lawn . . .

Polo will undoubtedly be one of the leading topics of conversation whenever a group of guests gather to chat in the large drawing rooms . . . for Mr. Forbes himself, as well as most of his nieces and nephews, are ardent enthusiasts and most of them are expert players . . . R. Bennett Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Forbes, and one of the best players of the younger group, will be an usher tonight, together with his cousin, Elliot Forbes, Roger H. Hallowell, John W. Bryant, Thomas C. Williams, Philip S. Hallowell, John P. Ayer, Richard Eustis, Jr., J. Wister Meigs, S. Parkman Shaw, 3rd, George W. Gibson, Nathaniel Goodhue and a number of others . . .

Wilbur Premiere Attracts Fashionables

RUSSIANS, with beards and otherwise, are not the vogue they used to be . . . when a woman's club lecture program or a series of magazine articles were not complete without "My Reminiscences of Russia and My Escape from the Soviet," by Grand Duchess or Grand Duke someone or other . . .

Yet the Theater Guild has revived many of the old stories of fleeing White Russians escaping the wrath of the Bolsheviks in its play, "Tovarich," which opened its Boston run at the Shubert Theater last evening . . .

The play is so well written, full of amusing incidents and human warmth, and the characters of the Grand Duchess and Prince Ouratieff are so charmingly presented by Marta Abba and Rudolf Forster that the first night audience found it most interesting and enjoyable . . . and not the least bit reminiscent of that time worn chestnut, "My Escape from Rawshah" . . .

There were many prominent members of society in the large audience . . . Mrs. A. L. West Movius, in a black gown with a silver fox cape, chatted with Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Nickerson as they all enjoyed a smoke at intermission . . . Mrs. Nickerson's beautiful coral velvet gown was trimmed with shirred bands of the material and she wore a long pearl necklace . . .

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Youngman (Elsie Perkins) and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Shaw, Jr., were among the young married couples present. Mrs. Youngman's distinctive black dinner gown enhanced by a necklace of Chinese jade . . . Jane Pickman, in a moulded gown of gold crepe, and Sylvia Van Ness represented the debutante set . . . while Connie Turner and Evie Weatherby, with their beaus, enjoyed the gayety of a first night as much as when they were debs a couple of years ago . . .

Mrs. Horace Morison wore a luminous satin gown of deep flame color, Mrs. Robert Prouty chose a simple black velvet dinner gown and Mrs. Howard Slayman's theater outfit was an unusual printed silk of deep rich colors . . . Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Albert M. Kales in hyacinth blue lace over a deeper shade of taffeta, Miss Jean Kiley, Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb, Mrs. Malcolm B. French with Mrs. William Danforth, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gavin, Miss Gertrude Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow with the latter's sister, Miss Louise Condit.

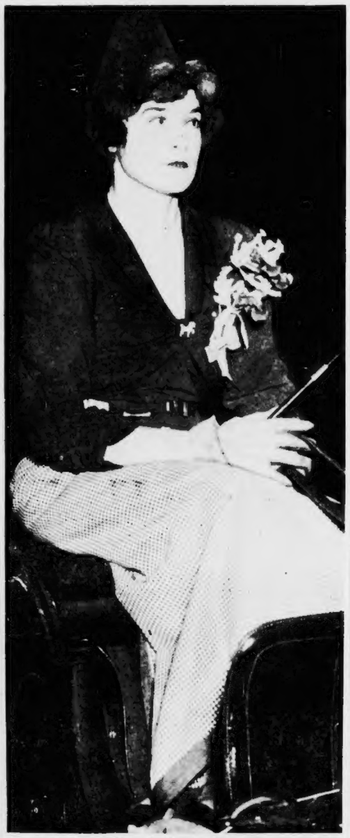
Debs to Aid at Bridge Party

NANCY NYE, Louise Fry and Lucy Pope are among the debs invited to stroll about the bridge tables selling sweets and smokes at the annual bridge party and fashion show staged by the All Souls Lend a Hand Club at the Copley-Plaza next Monday afternoon . . .

Barbara Salt, one of the peppiest and most vivacious of this year's debs, who will make her debut in December, will also be a candy vendor together with Sylvia Van Ness and Betty Scudder . . . The entire proceeds of the bridge will go to the maintenance of the splendid work done by the club, which aids gentle folk who suffer from reduced circumstances . . .

Mrs. Lewis Wadsworth, Mrs. Jay Benton, Mrs. Edward Rice, Mrs. John R. Stuart, Mrs. Harry P. Bradford, Mrs. Ralph Stuart, Mrs. Edward K. Perry, Mrs. Frederick Weatherby and Mrs. Harold Bowditch are among the patronesses for the party . . .

Seeks New Honors



AS HORSE SHOW affairs in New England are now at an early winter standstill, Mrs. William Cox of Cohasset sought new fields to conquer and took her stable of thoroughbreds over to New York to compete in the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden. She was caught by the photographer as she sat in a rubber tired buggy awaiting her turn to enter the ring and show her hackney pony.

Miss Fritz Is Bride

Mrs. John Fritz of New Bedford announces the marriage on Saturday of her daughter, Miss E. Elizabeth Fritz, to R. Amory Thorndike, son of Dr. and Mrs. Augustus Thorndike of Boston and Bar Harbor.

The bride graduated from Goucher College and received her master's degree from Simmons. She is now connected with the social service department of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mr. Thorndike graduated from Harvard in 1921 and spent a year at Cambridge University, England. He is in business in Boston and is a director of the New England Conservatory of Music, director of the Flute Player's Club, the Mt. Desert Island Hospital and the Abbe Museum, and secretary of the Bar Harbor Village Improvement Association.

Following their honeymoon the couple will live in Boston.

SOCIETY NOTES

MRS. C. NICHOLS GREENE of Chestnut street will be hostess this afternoon at the first of her open house parties of the season. The guest of honor will be Fernando Germani, noted Italian organist, who is giving a concert in Symphony Hall tomorrow evening. Signo Germani and his wife are prominent figures in patrician society in Rome where they have their permanent home. Mrs. Greene has just returned from Europe where she spent the summer traveling after attending the coronation ceremonies in London.

Lectures Attract Many

For yesterday's mental stimulant you had your choice of two lectures.

Mrs. John Bottomley and daughter, Ellen, were sufficiently intellectually minded to take in both. Mrs. Bottomley poured tea at the Skinner talk at Sacred Heart in the afternoon and could be seen in mid-evening hailing a cab outside Symphony, following Wells' solution of the world's evils. Mrs. Bottomley topped her black tailored ensemble with a sable scarf. Ellen wore a wine red wool beneath her gray kidskin chubby.

WEARS BLACK CARACUL

Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly and her sister, Julia Mahony, were among H. G. Wells' listeners last evening, mink trimming the former's black caracul. Miss Mahony in black Persian.

But let's skip back to Newton and the Sacred Heart lecture. Mrs. Emlyn Mitchell, president of the alumnae, chose black velvet, her tiny pill-box sporting inserts of color. From their seats in the last row, Mrs. Eugene O'Donnell and her daughter Ellen, listened attentively. Mrs. O'Donnell chose a black ensemble, a sable scarf adding a note of luxury. Ellen was smart in her gray krimmer with matching turban.

Pre-occupied with the business of checking tickets were Mrs. Edward McLaughlin, twin foxes with her henna costume, and Mrs. Gerald Connelly, in black crepe with the same type furs.

FOXES PROMINENT

Among the mother and daughter combinations attending the lecture were Mrs. Edward Dunn and her daughter, Dorothy, now Mrs. John Dempsey, and Mrs. John Kiley, who chose royal blue crepe, same shade feather in her over-sized beret, and daughter, Jean, similarly attired in black crepe with a chapeau of multi-colored suede.

Glimpsed three active Ace of Clubs members chatting at the close of the lecture. Mrs. Frederic Sheehan, whose black nubby wool was collared in Persian; Mrs. C. J. E. Kickham, in a costume of black and silver fox, and Mrs. Charles E. Donovan, whose slate gray coat was trimmed with fox of the same shade.

Presiding at one of the goody-laden tea tables was Mrs. M. L. Ryan whose perky black wool was swathed in lynx while Alice Flavey, another active alumna of the school, dispensed tea at another table, her royal blue frock clipped with rhinestones.

Your Odd Dreams

HOW silly your dreams seem in the morning sunlight! You laugh them away—but should you?

If you would interpret these odd dreams according to modern psychology, you'd often find they have serious messages for you—serious enough to make you change your course in life.

For your unconscious mind speaks in dreams. Through symbols that you can easily learn to read, it reveals the fears and desires of your real self.

Perhaps you dream you're alone in a world all ocean and sky. You meet no other living thing. Your strange vision is a "cosmic" dream—in sleep you try to escape into a primitive world where worries don't exist. It's a warning that you dangerously ignore some problem. You may care for some one you secretly fear is unworthy of you—but you won't face your fears.

Heed the warning your dream gives you. You can't run away from your problem. So face it—talk it out. You'll avoid unhappiness, maybe a breakdown.

Your unconscious uses many other symbols easy to recognize. A snake implies your affections are unruly; a dream of music hints you want to feel lofty, be better than you really are; a snarling cat says you fear treachery.

Do dreams come true? Sometimes. But usually the event is one likely to happen. You dream a reckless friend has a motor accident. A little later, he does.

In our 40-page booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS, a well-known psychologist explains common dream signs and symbols, helps you to understand your secret—your more important—self.

Send 15c for our booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Fiance Won't Take Other Man's Child

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It is seldom that one's second husband will open his arms to the children of his predecessor. Only a widow or divorcee who has contemplated remarriage knows the truth of this situation.

Consequently I am going to give the young woman who writes me today the only solution that I believe can be found for her problem.

First, however, I want you all to read the interesting letter she writes. Here it is:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 19. Two-and-a-half years ago I was married to a man who deserted me. Now I am divorced. My baby girl is with my mother in the country and I, myself, have a fair job in the city.

I expect shortly to marry again. My boy friend does not want the baby to live with us after we are married. I have been looking forward to the day when I could claim my little daughter, but now I am madly in love and wish to please the boy who is to be my husband.

What shall I do?

My mother, who is only 43, is crazy over baby and takes fine care of her.

Shall I insist on separating them?

WORRIED.

MY DEAR GIRL:

In a case like this, the first thing to be considered is the welfare of the little girl.

She needs a home where she is loved and wanted, and evidently your mother supplies this, so I would by all means leave the child where she is.

It is not surprising, since you married so young and married unhappily, that you were not able to develop maternal love and responsibility.

But it's a pity nevertheless, and I hope you will know these joys later on.

No doubt your fiance's objection to the child can be explained.

He, too, is young, I suppose, as well as jealously unwilling to share your affection with a baby that is not his. Still, his attitude is not generous or admirable.

Are you VERY SURE that he will love you and care for you unselfishly? Ask plenty of advice before you make a second mistake, I implore you.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

NO PROOF OF LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 17 years old and in love with a man of 30. He is very polite to me and often asks me for a date, but I always refuse. Do you think he is too old for me?

And do you think he's acting polite because he's in love with me?

I'd like to go out with him, but I don't think he'd be true to me.

How can I find out if he really loves me; and if he does, do you think it's all right to be in love with a man of 30?

M. T.

DEAR CHILD:

Being polite to a girl and inviting her out doesn't mean that a man is in love.

It would be quite proper to accept his invitations occasionally, but don't take this friendship so seriously.

Go out with boys of your own age, and put ideas of marriage out of your head till your judgment becomes more mature.

You girls of 16, 17 and 18 do not know how lucky you are to be young and free. These are your best years, make the most of them.

I get desperate letters from girls who have married when they should have been in school.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Just a Little Care

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Playing rubber bridge a short time ago, two hands came up, one immediately following the other, which, if carefully handled, would have given partner and myself a quick two-game rubber.

The opponents would not have scored a single point.

Unfortunately, my partner, declarer in both hands, not once but twice overlooked simple safety plays and the final result was that we lost a huge rubber—the opponents eventually getting vulnerable and then romping in with a grand slam.

I give you the first hand today and the second tomorrow.

South, dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
3 N T	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

As North, I saw no reason to "run." Partner should certainly have some sort of fit with my long diamond suit and, with the double on my right, I had reason to hope that my hand would produce six tricks. As a matter of fact, I was tempted to redouble and refrained only because my confidence in South did not extend that far.

West opened the club Queen, which my partner allowed to hold. The Jack followed, won by the Ace, and the diamond Jack was then led. West covered, and the Ace won. My partner's face fell when East failed to follow.

TWO SERIOUS ERRORS

Obviously, although a finesse had been established against the ten for two additional diamond tricks, the suit itself could never be brought home.

Declarer led a heart and finessed the Queen, then collected two more diamond tricks on a finesse. West, of course, still had the suit stopped, however, and the spade finesse was next attempted. This lost to the Queen, and a club return cleared West's suit. West's spade Ace and diamond ten accounted for the second setting trick.

Actually my partner was squeezed on West's diamond play and had to guess whether to hold the high spade or the high heart, fortunately guessing right and keeping the former.

There were two serious errors in this hand. The first was made by West. When the diamond Jack was led, West should not have covered! He should have seen that if he failed to cover he would certainly be able to stop the suit.

LOSES GOOD BET

When he did cover, my partner passed up a beautiful opportunity which was to allow the King to hold the trick! Declarer did not need all seven diamond tricks for his contract—six would be ample. Thus, to concede one trick to the King and thereby establish the rest of the suit, was an insurance play of the first water.

Waterless Wash Aids Hair

By ARLINE GOULD

TREAT your hair like a friend, and it'll stand by you longer than the human variety, any old time!

In these days of perfectly delightful hair-styling with silkiness and gloss and an informal, flying freedom stressed, the girl whose hair doesn't look groomed to the last strand loses caste in the eyes of the men in her life.

That statement doesn't put the masculine contingent on any pedestal by any means, because if they don't watch out the gleam through thinning top-locks will kindle an answering gleam of laughter in the girl friend's eyes . . . which is first-class torture, any self-respecting man about town will admit.

Anyone who is smart enough to realize that only healthy hair can possibly be beautiful is going to be immensely stirred by the medical-profession-endorsed waterless shampoo . . . that in one minute accomplishes the most thorough cleansing job in the world, and administers a scientific remedial tonic to the sensitive follicles.

Since it's how the follicle feels about things that determines whether or not you're going to keep the hair on your head, you can see the immense importance of this startling discovery.

See what a famous doctor who uses the new waterless shampoo immediately before and after operations says:

"This shampoo is absolutely flawless in maintaining a perfect hygiene of the scalp and hair . . . I find the daily use of this shampoo keeps my own hair in a healthy normal condition. It is easily and quickly applied and requires only a few minutes to give a complete shampoo. It contains necessary elements of hair health."

It's liquid, though waterless. And you simply pour it liberally on the hair and scalp, rub vigorously with the palm of the hand until a good lather is produced, and, before lather begins to disappear, dry thoroughly with a coarse towel!

Voila! The hair is clean, dry and groomed in about one minute. It's marvelous for children, too.

Falling hair is halted on its disheartening way out . . . contagion is lessened . . . itching scalp soothed forever . . . and dandruff prevented.

We'd say no honeymoon, no ski trip abroad, no jaunt whether by private yacht or gleaming trailer could possibly be complete from the beauty standpoint without this shampoo.

What it does to correct oily hair and nourish dry hair is little short of being THE achievement of this cosmetic age!

If you wish to know more about the hair-saving waterless shampoo . . . so new that it has just arrived in town this week . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week days until five, or write her at the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lower Canal Functions Given

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Recently I told you about the upper part of the alimentary canal, the digestive tract.

Today let me tell you more about this important passageway, with particular reference to its lower portion.

This part of the canal, about 28 feet in length, is housed in the abdominal cavity. It serves to convert the digestible parts of our foods into fluids; ultimately these are carried by the blood and lymph to all the different parts of the body.

Not only must we have foods, but it is essential that they be prepared for the use of the body. Then they are used for fuel and building material by all the minute cells of the human mechanism. What is left after this process is indigestible and remaining in the canal is to be excreted as waste material.

Recently a writer referred to the alimentary canal as a factory. He pointed out that the raw material is taken in at one end and run through this great tubular factory where it is converted into usable food. It is an establishment that is constantly at work, and even while we sleep, it performs its important tasks.

HOW IT WORKS

Although the factory works all the time, it does not work always at the same rate. Since it takes a day and a half to handle a full meal, it will be seen why the digestive process is continuous and must occasionally be speeded up to take care of all the material we consume.

When the food mass leaves the stomach to pass into the intestine, certain chemicals or "enzymes" are supplied to make the foods absorbable by the blood and tissues. For example, the pancreas and the liver furnish more than a pint of chemical fluid daily.

In addition to this chemical aid, the coat of the intestine is provided with muscles to promote this passage of the material. By the action of these muscles the intestines act rhythmically, not unlike the movements of a worm. These so-called "peristaltic waves" push the food material along.

What Has Happened

"Gat" Brower, ace gangster, has been sent to Leavenworth on income tax charges. He exacted a promise from Flo Allen, his sweetheart, to look after Ann, his beautiful young daughter.

But at a moment when Flo's vigilance is relaxed, Ann is lured into a taxi by Red Carroll, arch enemy of her father, who tells her [illegible] has escaped and wants her to come to him.

CHAPTER 9

The taxi in which Ann and Red Carroll were [illegible] the girl believed, to her father's hideaway left [illegible] way at Canal street and swung toward the Holland Tunnel, under the Hudson River and connecting New York and New Jersey.

Ann turned to Carroll.

"Tell the driver to stop and I'll telephone Mr. McLane now. They have had time . . ."

Carroll no longer could repress impulse and kowtow to the daughter of the man he so viciously hated. He [illegible] her words with a [illegible] blow which left her pretty chin bruised [illegible].

But Ann was made of sterner stuff—perhaps some of her father's dominate spirit had been passed on to her. [illegible]

And as she did [illegible] a scream which would have done credit to a scalp-hunting Apache.

Before the flabbergasted thug could choke her into silence, a New Jersey state motorcycle patrolman whose station was at [illegible]

The motorcycle cop stood for a minute, his gun still trained upon the sullen gangster, listening to the girl's story.

"Drove you here from New York and struck you when you screamed, huh?

"This ain't a case for me, lady. That's violation of the Lindbergh kidnapin' law—bringin' a kidnap victim across a state line. And he struck you, inflictin' bodily injury.

Makes it a capital rap. But us state cops can't handle it. This is a job for the Feds."

His first 15 days of incarceration [illegible] other tests in order that they might be properly classified by the prison officials whose unwilling "guests" they must be for varying periods of time.

The "Gat," or rather No. 48,919, knew enough not to stop his work when he heard the footsteps of a "screw," or guard, coming along the steel floor plates behind him. He kept on mopping.

But already his hearing faculties had become attuned to the [illegible] and the footsteps [illegible] with the heavy-footed [illegible] of the guard were not those of a convict.

They were firm, solid footfalls. Inmates of the "big house" were wont to shuffle.

No. 48,919 paused momentarily [illegible] mopping and turned to [illegible] the new prisoner [illegible] the guard was bringing into the cell block.

No. 48,919 dropped his mop and clenched his fists as the new "fish" recognized him and sarcastically blurted out:

The guard yanked the man along. [illegible] turned and leered.

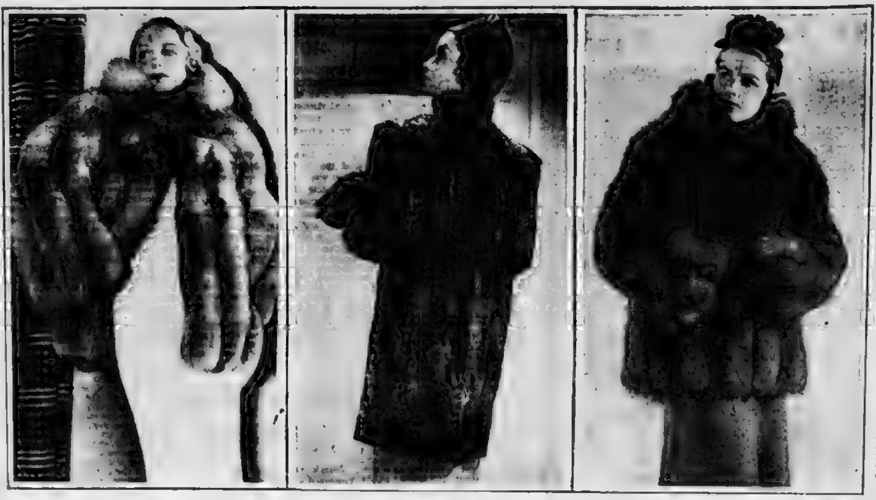
Fortunes in Furs Parade for National Fur Week



FUR FASHIONS are more compelling than ever, and sponsors of National Fur Week which is already under way, wouldn't let us forget it for a minute!

But we need no spur to rave . . . for we're mad about the boleros with waistlines slim as a matador's, about the infinitely chic short coats that are sleek and straight as a kid glove, about the masses of fox, and the swinging rhythm of everything else! As for those pulse-wrecking short jackets of brilliant red fox . . . or the subtle "fighter" numbers of blue fox!

EXERCISE SLOW REDUCER

By IDA JEAN KAIN

YOU cannot hope to reduce by exercise if you overeat. To lose one pound you must burn 4320 calories and that is no easy job.

Most of us have neither the time nor the endurance to reduce solely by exercise.

Do you know how much exercise it would take to burn those 4320-odd calories that make a pound? Well, it requires eight hours' steady walking on the level to burn one [illegible] of a pound! You [illegible] lose the pound by trotting 34 miles at the rate of one mile in eight [illegible]

Swimming takes your curves down at the rate of 540 calories per hour provided you are in champion ship form and swim at the rate of two miles an hour. Horseback riding, at a trot, takes 300 calories per hour—the horse uses quite a few more!

* * *

All in all, it is simpler to reduce by cutting down on your calories. Omitting dessert does away with from 100 to 500 calories, none of which belong in the overweight's diet.

Don't for a minute think this means that you do not need to exercise. Exercise is a complementary measure and it is your only means of clipping off the inches in just exactly the places that need trimming down. Also, you need exercise to tone and firm the muscles. During reducing exercise is very necessary to prevent flabbiness and lethargy.

Summing it up, in order to reduce you need both measures. Exercise will improve the lines of the figure, but you cannot reduce if you overeat.

Follow the daily menus to keep within your calorie requirements, and gradually work into an exercise program that will make your figure slim and lovely. Begin with "General Exercise — to Keep you Trim—and Fit as a Fiddle," for which you may send. Be sure to enclose a stamped addressed envelope.

DICKEY CHANGES HIS MIND

CHAPTER 451

I KNEW that Dicky was at the end of his rope as far as objections to my plan for lending Samuel Brixton money was concerned, when, in answer to my statement that I had the legal right to dispose of any part or all of the money Robert Savarin had deeded to me to hold in trust for Lillian and Marion, he had said darkly that there were lunacy commissions.

"Dicky," I said quietly, "are you going to penalize me for being honest with you?"

DICKY MISUNDERSTANDS

"Penalize you," he repeated. "I didn't say anything about penalizing. A nice, quiet, padded cell in a private madhouse is about your part. [illegible] Charity begins at home, says I."

"I wish you would stop this nonsense and listen to me," I said plaintively.

"Don't you realize that I did not [illegible] that?" I said. "You never would have found out about it if I had kept a secret."

He did not speak for a long half minute. Then he said slowly:

"Yes, I realize that. But I also realize that if I had kept a secret like that from you, the [illegible] could be heard a mile away."

"Look here," he said. "I take back all I've said that might offend you, and if Robert Savarin wanted to insure the future of Marion and [illegible]

"I'm only risking ten thousand of the money he planned for Lillian and Marion and you know that's only a small part of the whole," I said stubbornly. "The other fifteen thousand Robert Savarin expected me to use as I pleased for my own charities."

"Well, I suppose you could dub Brixton a charity," Dicky said.

"That's not fair," I said, flushing. "You know I didn't mean that."

"Nor did I mean it," he retorted, "but I do mean this. Won't you keep from using that ten? Why not fifteen [illegible]"

"Because it would be thrown away. I [illegible] Mr. Brixton [illegible] when he did not dream I [illegible] help him. And to think I [illegible]

[illegible] Dicky admitted grudgingly [illegible] the sum he named, [illegible]

Education Only Escape From Chaos, Says Wells

Expounds His Utopia Of Learning Before Leaving Boston

Having enjoyed to the fullest Boston's "cultural kindliness," Herbert George Wells, British author and journalist, today left this city for New Haven with "the most pleasant recollections."

"The cultural kindliness of Boston bestowed on me during my all too short visit leaves me with the most pleasant recollections.

"The responsiveness of the people of your city to the ideas that brought me here was most gratifying.

"I enjoyed your leaders. I enjoyed my visit to Harvard. In fact everything was all there was to be desired."

It was in this city last night that Wells chose to outline for the first time his plan to save the world from chaos.

[illegible]

He advocated the creation of a world encyclopedic organization which would assemble index digest and then distribute all knowledge to all men in all parts of the world.

MICROSCOPIC FILM

The world encyclopedia is practically possible [illegible]

ALL WORLD AT ONCE

[illegible]

"Our world is changing," he said.

"An old world is dying rapidly—a new world is struggling into existence but it is not developing a strong enough brain organization to insure a perfect life.

"The changes in the world have come from the complete revolution in man's relation to distance and very soon television will make it possible for man everywhere to look each other in the face.

"Furthermore the monstrous increase in destructive power is haunting man everywhere. The League of Nations ineffectually tackled the political end of the problem and proved a failure.

WAR UNAVOIDABLE

"Many, for example, feel that the drift towards a war that may annihilate all of us cannot be avoided. I do not agree with those who talk of the inevitability of that great future war, but I believe in its possibility.

"I repeat, I don't believe that world disaster is inevitable, even though I acknowledge that fear prevails over a large part of the earth and liberty is threatened or outraged in many countries.

"I still believe in the ability of the democratic countries to effect a great change in brain organization which will alter every institution and tradition in the world.

"No other solution seems possible to me. The Russian revolution now is on the defensive as much as any upstart dictatorship. None of the dictators possess the assurance of their people that they are marching to a better life.

"I think we are too pessimistic about the suppression of speech in Germany, Italy and Russia for in my opinion this suppression does not mean an end to creative thought in these countries. It may be better for having been confined.

"The concentration camps of today may be the training ground for our new freedom."

Army Chaplains Warn Hitler on Church Stand

([illegible] International News Service)

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—A grave warning that the Nazi government's treatment of the church may prove dangerous to Germany's military strength was handed to Chancellor Hitler by the chaplains of the armed forces, it was reported today in well informed quarters here.

The warning was understood to have been contained in a petition from the chaplains delivered to the Reich Führer by private emissaries in order to circumvent the hazards of Nazi censorship.

The petition was said to have pointed out that Germany's [illegible]

A new FRESH note in the Old Quartet

ALL THE OTHER leading cigarette brands sing the praises of their fine tobaccos. So does Old Gold! No finer tobaccos grow than those used in Old Golds. But that's only ONE VERSE in Old Gold's song.

Old Gold renders you an extra service . . . vital to you this Fall and Winter . . . when steam heat dries out the atmosphere and colds and throat troubles threaten.

Stale tobacco is harsh and irritating. So Old Gold puts an extra jacket of Cellophane on every package. This double wrapper doubly protects the freshness of Old Golds. It guards them from staleness and dryness. Neither steam heat nor dry Winter air gets through that double armor of Cellophane.

Those finer, fresher Old Golds strike a new note . . . sweet music to your taste!

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

Sometimes I wish the men at Tech weren't quite so ingenious and inventive. A year or two ago they were devising all kinds of machines to test out the girls they took to parties, tests of weight, hair-color, temperature, "hotness or frigidity," chemical composition and such. Most of them were spoofs but I can't help wondering what the girls who went to the parties must have thought of them. They seemed to exhibit a kind of scientific or pseudo-scientific [illegible] more common among bright and serious [illegible] than school boys [illegible] college men.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

All the more I wonder [illegible] will be the effect [illegible] questionnaire [illegible]. They were seeking [illegible] the difference between the girls who [illegible] and the girls who make good wives. It [illegible] more scandalous [illegible] particularly [illegible] have been [illegible] largely because they were [illegible].

What Tech Paper Says Of 'Dream Girl Poll'

A paragraph [illegible] from the student newspaper "The Tech" [illegible] what I mean. It was [illegible] a thousand [illegible] until the [illegible].

"Seeking to delineate the features of Technology's ideal girl friend, the poll succeeded in bringing to life the fact that this mythical figure has two personalities, that the 'femme' dated by the average engineer is hardly the girl with whom he expects to settle down when he is twenty-five years and six months old and whom he hopes to be the mother of his 2.06 children.

"The future wives themselves are not exactly puritanical. Though they do not drink or smoke or pet, they indulge in necking to only a slightly less extent than their siren rivals. The Technology man evidently does not want a girl 'like his mother used to be,' for he expects her to have been in love with other men, to be frank and independent, and, as far as possible definitely uncorseted and ungirdled.

"Yet in many ways he is critical of her behavior, forbids her to hear or tell questionable stories in mixed company, likes her to wear sensible or concealing clothes. After he has married her he will no longer go out with other women nor does he expect her to go out with other men."

But With His 'Dates'? Well, That's Different!

[illegible] is definitely more [illegible] questionnaire seems [illegible] the worst possible taste. [illegible] intended to set boys discussing [illegible] I fear, things which [illegible] which do not [illegible].

If the [illegible] gets spread around in the public prints as I am very much afraid it is likely to, [illegible]. It will give an impression of a place where the students do not respect [illegible] and where they draw a hard and fast line between the girls they hope to marry—and the others.

I say [illegible] a distinction which exists more in the student's mind than in fact, because the whole questionnaire is based on that pretty imaginary distinction. It makes the Tech man reveal [illegible] essentially Victorian-minded [illegible] the views supposed to have been held by [illegible] gentlemen "befoah de war."

Blondes Win Out as Dates, Only Even as Wives

[illegible] emerge from this questionnaire [illegible] which show some [illegible] the Tech man believes [illegible] husband and wife [illegible] social background [illegible]. That is sensible. He would [illegible] intelligence and [illegible]. He would not care to be interested in literature [illegible] I am afraid he is [illegible] but he does not want [illegible] art, except etchings. There the [illegible] speaks. He likes [illegible]. Blondes and brunettes [illegible] desirable for wives, but [illegible] blondes win out.

[illegible] and the answers are [illegible] as I have said [illegible] which means [illegible] at all. It is downright bad [illegible]. I suspect that both the questionnaire and the answers were devised very lightly and irresponsibly. If that is so, it is all the more pity that a good many people may think that the Tech man is like that.

Silver Star Won By Medford Vet

Leo G. Trainer of Dwyer circle, Medford, was today awarded the Silver Star Decoration by the Navy Department for gallantry in action of Armistice Day, 1918, near Mouzon, France, according to a Washington dispatch.

Trainer was formerly a gunnery sergeant of the 5th marine regiment. The official citation said:

"During the march to Bellefont Farm it was necessary to proceed parallel to a strip of woods occupied by enemy outposts armed with machine guns. Sergeant Tranier voluntarily served as a member of a patrol sent out to act as point and draw fire.

"They succeeded in cleaning out several outposts which resulted in the capture of a farmhouse. Later, he crossed an open field under intense machine gunfire and brought his wounded platoon leader to a place of safety."

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Marjorie McBride

Getting yourself married has become a science, with courses devoted to it and everything. Which is a way of leading up to the fact that Hope Thayer of Boston and Brookline is starting classes in charm and so forth for girls matrimonially inclined.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

Do you want to get married? Are you getting what you want out of life? Do men seek your company? Does your voice vibrate with warmth and color? Those are a few of the questions put to the girls in Miss Thayer's [illegible] intends to give them lessons in development of charm, [illegible] overcoming of inferiority complex.

[illegible] the art of [illegible] how to [illegible]. It seems that [illegible] as important in 1937 as it was to her great grandmother.

Old-Fashioned Method Still Most Effective

The old fashioned way of [illegible] with a man and practically [illegible] him [illegible] proposing is still the best, the expert admits, if you can get away with it. But as society is constituted, and financial matters arranged, a smart girl will admit the need of a little professional advice. Distinguished lecturers talk to the young women who take the course.

AUSTEN LAKE

Wise Monkey; Dr. John's Sin; Helpful Rab

AUSTEN LAKE

AS THE EDITORIAL WRITERS WOULD SAY, there is a design for living in this. A monkey, no bigger than a hip flask, has been loose among the rafters in the in the Boston Garden for the past month. The monk is having the holiday of his life, swinging from the girders, doing lewd dances on the beams, and making snoots at the balcony customers.

It happened like this. During the week of Gordon's animal show, October 3 to 9, fifteen monkeys escaped from a cage and went skittering over the Garden. For a week attendants baited traps with bananas, baked yams and peanuts, so that, one by one, the truant simians succumbed to the stomach urge, tumbled down from the roof and surrendered. All, that is, except the fifteenth monk, who cherished freedom and a chance to live according to his own idea more than a square meal and caged comfort.

As the editorialists would say, few men and fewer monkeys have a big, focal moment in their lives when, for one sweet spell, they are the center of popular attention. So here was one monk with initiative and an urge for self-expression. Here was his Big Moment, and the furred philosopher snatched at life with all the knack of his 20 toes. Let timorous souls barter liberty for a banana. Better a peanut shuck in untrammelled freedom of the roof rafters than fat comfort in wire cage.

Night times the little individualist cuddles in a high angle of the steel work. Day times he prowls warily among the seats, feeding on left-overs from the Garden shows. The pickings are [illegible] fat. For he is no man's creature. If the folk who [illegible] the wrestling and boxing shows stare up at him he stares down on them [illegible] as contemptuous of the wriggling contortions on the mat beneath as the customers are amused at his aerial antics.

The [illegible] has the advantage. He pays no federal ticket tax.

The Sum of All its Parts

THEOREM: THE MEASUREMENT OF THE HUMAN soul is no greater than its capacity to resist temptation.

Given: Dr. John W. Ruskin, 65, a professional investigator of human evils who was assigned recently by the New Jersey Tax Payer's League to study the effect of gambling-sin at New England's horse and dog tracks with an eye to gathering propaganda.

To prove: That human nature is being morally undermined by wagering on the hazy probabilities of an animal's legs.

Demonstration: Dr. John made a few experimental bets at Narragansett to acquire the proper sensation of sin. He found he liked it. So presently Dr. John was in the sack for $1800 and began writing imaginary checks

Three Stackenberg Knockouts Feature Second Hearst Amateur Trial Bouts

22 of 29 Bouts End in Kayos

By WALTER KILEY

Action and thrills went hand in hand [illegible]

Knockouts came in such quick succession, many of them so startling in their suddenness that it's almost unfair to single out any special winner.

Out of [illegible] sponsorship of the [illegible] Evening American-Sunday Advertiser and the Irish American A. A. came the [illegible] New England [illegible] the later Eastern and Grand National All-America [illegible] finals come to [illegible]

HALL WINS 118'S

Among the most [illegible] showings was that of [illegible] Abe Stackenberg, a [illegible] 19-year-old, who [illegible] three two-round knockouts as he survived a fast field in the 160-pound open division.

Clever, sharp-hitting and powerful, [illegible] able to assimilate whatever punishment came his way, with a long reach and a fine left jab which was constantly doing great damage, the Randolph schoolboy knocked out [illegible] and Manuel [illegible] of Boston [illegible] to [illegible] top honors in the [illegible] class.

In winning over Baptiste Stackenberg covered himself with glory, for the Frenchman had [illegible]

'If I Didn't Know I Was Fit, I'd Have Stayed Back on Farm,' Says Shore; Ready for Big Year

Bruins' Ace Believes Back as Strong as Ever; Confident He'll Play Entire String After Bruising Montreal Game

By BILL GRIMES

T[illegible] in the minds of Boston hockey fans when they mull over the Bruins' prospects for the coming season [illegible]

IS EDDIE SHORE THROUGH AS A STAR PLAYER? HAS AGE FINALLY CAUGHT UP WITH THE GREAT ACE OF HOCKEY?

[illegible] after seeing Shore in recent workouts I have felt these fears were unfounded, still I thought it best to have Shore [illegible] now debate the subject might be [illegible]

[illegible] I cornered Eddie after practice at the Arena and [illegible] "Are you through as a player?"

"Am I through as a player?" countered the Bruins star, vehemently, as a white rage began to replace his high color.

"You must be crazy. You saw me play against the Indians last week in Springfield.

"Did I look as if I was all washed up? The sparkplug on that one cylinder brain of yours isn't firing."

"Whoa, boy, whoa," I interrupted. "I haven't the slightest doubt that you're headed for one of your most successful seasons. Sure, I saw you go in Springfield and you looked great to me.

Bill Grimes

"But it seems that the hockey fans because you were obliged to withdraw from active service last January have allowed themselves to get all hot and bothered over your physical condition."

"Well, in that case, I'll tell you and you may pass it along to the fans, that I'm prepared to go through a real strenuous season," Eddie continued. "And let me add if I didn't know I was fit I'd have stayed back on the farm.

"I will admit, however, that when I left for home last season I didn't know what the future held in store for me as far as playing hockey was concerned.

"I've been with the Bruins for more than a [illegible] decade. And not only have I been paid for my services, but I've managed to set aside a few odd dollars for a rainy day.

"I DON'T have to play hockey for a living. That farm of mine will take care of that. I'm proud of my reputation as a hockey player and [illegible] would I consider gambling my rep against one year's salary.

"When I [illegible] up my stick and skates I hope it will be after a great season. [illegible] I'll not fade out of the picture as some of the N. H. L. stars have done and wind up my career in any minor league.

"When I feel that I'm through as a player I will go back to the farm for Mr. Shore's boy Eddie."

Blames Himself for Collapse

"I've nobody to blame but myself for my collapse last season. During the previous summer I had had trouble with my back, the seriousness of which I [illegible]

"I [illegible] I'd shake it off. You know the [illegible] superman stuff [illegible] has been dishing out to the public. I must have gone [illegible]

"As it was, when I reached the training camp late as usual I attempted to catch up with the rest of the squad with the result I strained myself [illegible] put me on the hospital list.

"Instead of waiting until I was physically fit to play, I insisted on [illegible] against [illegible] in Montreal and then I was on the [illegible] against the Flying Frenchmen and Rangers.

"[illegible] I was not so strong as I figured, and the two days rest between the last two games was not enough, for I was unable to get [illegible] until December. In the meantime the Bruins had played eight games.

"[illegible] there for five and a half weeks. I was hurt in Montreal [illegible] in January [illegible] I was obliged to quit halfway through the next two games, making my final appearance of the season [illegible] Rangers late that month, [illegible] missing the [illegible] games of the play-offs.

Sang Blues Going Home

"[illegible] I was pretty blue when I packed up and went west last [illegible] overheard remarks and I was [illegible] something radically wrong with me.

"W[illegible] a complete rest until the beginning of [illegible] Even then I was not so sure of my condition [illegible] I didn't overtax myself.

"I want [illegible] the hockey fans that I haven't had an ache or a pain [illegible] since last season.

"I knew I was [illegible] when I reported at Hershey, but I was anxious [illegible] the reaction of a few body checks.

"No[illegible] slightest indication of any weakness up to now, and after that tough game in Montreal I am confident I'll play out the entire string this year."

BALD

● Eighteen years ago Paul A. Thomas devised the first accurate, reliable method of treating local scalp disorders. Then, as today, Thomas treatment ended dandruff, stopped abnormal hairfall and promoted hair growth on thin and bald spots. It consistently produces these results—and because of its success, The Thomas' have grown to an organization with 45 offices throughout the United States and Canada.

Today Thomas treatment is more effective than it has ever been. New methods are constantly being tested and when something is proved to be of definite value, Thomas clients are the first to receive benefit. Basically, however, Thomas treatment remains the same, because no method has ever been found which produces results as consistently as does the original Thomas method.

Call for a free scalp examination today and see for yourself just how Thomas treatment ends dandruff, stops falling hair and promotes hair growth. Examination and treatment are always in private.

Clark to Operate On Robert's Leg

'I'll Break It If He Refuses to Quit,' Says Dazzler---Bearded Feldman In Garden Preliminary

George (Dazzler) Clark, gabby Scotchman, declares he will win the world heavyweight wrestling championship from Yvon Robert, youthful and flashy French-Canadian titleholder, at Boston Garden tomorrow night. What is more, Clark will tell you just how he will defeat Robert.

GEORGE CLARK

"By that, I mean I can use my legs like the average guy uses his hands and arms.

"Robert's leg was shattered in three places more than a year ago. He declares it is as strong as ever today. It couldn't be.

"I am going to work on that leg and show him no mercy. I'll break it if he refuses to give up.

"Ordinarily, I'm a pretty soft-hearted guy and wouldn't pick on an opponent's weakness like a broken leg. But I have no use for that Robert. He has already caused me too much grief. So I will show him no mercy tomorrow night."

On the eve of the ballot the little man with the rubber plant ears and the grave digger's voice was exhorting his townsmen in Irwin's behalf. His voice filled the big auditorium as it rose to an impassioned plea to vote, not alone for his friend.

Repair Job on Kelley

FORDHAM UNIVERSITY LAST WEEK CAME up with an educational novelty. Copying the auto manufacturer's system of "servicing" their product after sale to a customer, Fordham has installed a "servicing system" for the benefit of bosses who acquire its new and untested graduates. The University guarantees its alumni on a replacement basis and employers will be entitled to send any grad who develops cultural weakness back to Fordham for corrective work at no expense.

Yale should have done that in the case of Larry Kelley. For Larry did not learn at New Haven that one job, thoroughly done, is better than slurring two. Hence, while Peddie School has been taking its weekly football lickings, Larry has been sitting Saturdays in the press coops of college stadiums, culling material for his syndicated Monday football reviews. Peddie's alumni insist that, as the school's coach, Larry's place is on the bench with his kids—or permanently in the press box. Peddie is entitled to a replacement in Larry Kelley's judgement mechanism.

Lemon Flavor for the A. A. U.

A GENT WITH THE APPROPRIATE NAME of J. B. Lemon, from the [illegible] of Florida is preparing something acid for the A. A. U. [illegible] in Boston next Saturday. As the Florida delegate, Mr. Lemon will affect a sour pucker and condemn the A. A. U. daddies for making "[illegible] hypocrites and prevaricators of our amateur youth."

In a preliminary, practice squirt of verbal juice, Lemon says, "Only a few athletes today can qualify as amateurs under the present A. A. U. definition." He thinks the A. A. U. code is outmoded and he will suggest that athletes who are openly professional in a sport be disqualified as amateurs only in that sport and be permitted to compete as amateurs in all others.

There is something in it. Golf discovered that the amateur field was not contaminated by allowing such frank baseball professionals as Babe Ruth to compete for pure glory. Maybe a little extract of Lemon's liberality will offset the saccharine, vanilla, make believe of the A. A. U.'s false piety.

NAVAL TEAMS INCREASE

"It is very gratifying to note that the number of teams competing (naval) has increased each year since the competition started and that the winning team last year obtained a higher score than the winning team the year previous.

"The results definitely indicate the steadily increasing interest in small arms which the competition for the William Randolph Hearst trophies has stimulated."

It is expected that the number of competing teams in the Hearst R. O. T. C. matches will exceed the record of [illegible] which was reached in 1936-37.

Yale Turns Down Coast Bid

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 9 (INS)—Yale University has no Rose Bowl aspirations.

This was the answer this afternoon by Malcolm Farmer, chairman of the Yale Athletic Association, to unofficial reports from the West Coast that Yale was much wanted to participate in the intersectional post-season game there.

"Even if it should be invited, Yale could not accept," Farmer said. "The Yale football season ends with the Harvard game at Cambridge."

By this it is understood that the obstacle to Yale participation is the understanding between members of the "Ivy League" which includes Harvard and Princeton that no post-season games would be played by the three universities.

SHEWCHUK "NATURAL"

[illegible] to that of George Owen [illegible]

When he missed making the grade with the Bruins last year, Crawford returned to Canada and joined the Lakeshore Mines.

A year ago Art Ross sent a great line to the Reds, Woodie Dumart, Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer. That trio was recalled before the end of the 1936-37 season and in its place Ross has substituted Mel Hill, Don Mercer and Red Hamill.

Hamill is from the Queen City and broke into hockey with the Young Ranger Juniors. Then he moved up to the Porcupine Hockey Club and last season was with Jack Shewchuk on the Cooper Cliff Juniors. Although he is only 20 years old, Hamill stands five feet eleven inches and weighs 180 pounds.

MERCER PLAY MAKER

Don Mercer will be the play maker for Hill and Hamill. Mercer came to the Bruins in trade for Percy Jackson the former Cub goalminder. He was on the defense for Trail, B. C., for two seasons, then played for Edmonton in the North-western League, and last year he was with Vancouver. Don makes his home in Buhl, Idaho.

In the thirteen years they have been in the N. H. L. the Bruins have never started a season in such remarkable physical condition. The fortnight at Hershey primed them for a tough season, and barring injuries they'll be the club to beat for American division honors.

'Tovarich' Acclaimed At Shubert Premiere

By PEGGY DOYLE

When Gilbert Miller's "Tovarich" opened in New York a year ago last October even the conservative New York Times reported that there had been "appropriate jubilation on the sidewalks" the evening before.

After more than a year's impatient waiting, Boston, at the Shubert Theater last evening, was rewarded with "Tovarich." And if the ermined and top-hatted first nighters were not inhibited by generations of Puritan restraint there is no doubt that they would have turned Tremont street into a cavorting, tearing Big Apple fest as they left the theater.

"Tovarich" is gay and tender and amusing and it evoked more spontaneous laughter in the theater at last night's opening than has been heard this side of the Charles in months.

Easily the most provocative talented member of its [illegible] company is Marta Abba, who is every inch the Grand Duchess Tatiana Petrovna [illegible] fascinating than the [illegible] of grand duchesses [illegible]

She must be the world's finest light comedienne. It seems hardly probable that there could be another to point up so deftly and constantly the droll situations that abound in this jewel of a comedy without once straining at vivacity or impinging on the footlight preserves of the really expert company she is in.

REACHING out again after another network name, the "Hollywood Mardi Gras" program planners pick Bob Burns to be with Lanny Ross and Charlie Butterworth this evening (WNAC) between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m.

Burns will bring his "bazooka," of course, and bears special permission to appear, having had to "bring a note" from Bing Crosby in order to air himself for auto interests.

A [illegible] a ready [illegible] been called upon [illegible] biggest artist stunt [illegible] the [illegible] exchange of [illegible] personalities [illegible] the [illegible] take [illegible] the [illegible] Or the day [illegible] big [illegible] be [illegible]

N. F. T.

FUTURE FEARS

As [illegible] customer puts it, next sea[illegible] find numerous big lea[illegible] borrowed by other clubs with teams advertising the fact by way of bolstering local box office business around the circuit. For example, Gehrig will play first for the Red Sox some Saturday as a guest artist.

Or perhaps it might lead to contemporary newspapers asking each other to swap reporters and scribes. Then too, the retail stores might even consider approaching one another for permission to announce a guest appearance of "Mr. So and So" in our shoe department for tomorrow only.

Perhaps the wireless workers for the major programs feel as did a [illegible] Bostonian who recently moved from Melrose to Roslindale, [illegible] him to use New Haven [illegible] trains. He began wondering if his favorite former conductor [illegible] out along the Boston and Maine line might be granted leave to be aboard his new commuting [illegible] 33 one or two evenings a week.

GLORIFIED GUESTS

Barbers and bartenders would be falling in line fast if the thing really began to get under way generally as it has on the air waves. After a while nobody would have much more than "guest appearances" to make at fancy figures.

In any event hearing a favorite entertainer on a given night then hearing the same voice and more or less same line of chatter through an additional half hour the same week seems to be the way it's working out for earcuppers.

Like strawberry shortcake or Welsh rarebit, a little of it goes a long way. Most successful of the host playing exploits among headliners was worked out by Jack Benny and Fred Allen—but notice they didn't keep it up. Both are showmen enough to know doing so would unquestionably weary the ears of the nation.

OTHER OFFERINGS

A large group of Cleveland's leading Negro vocalists who have attracted much attention with a series of distinctive concerts in the Ohio city during the past six months will be heard (WEEI) coast-to-coasting tonight from 10:45 to 11:30 p. m. Their program, entitled "Wings Over Jordan," will be devoted to spirituals and other religious music. The broadcast is to be directed by the Rev. Glenn T. Settle, organizer of the choir.

More than a few regular radio feature followers recall with relish the "Do You Want to Be an Actor" which followed the "Good Will Hour" settings last year and was then replaced by the current "Don Ameche-Edgar Bergen" variety turn where W. C. Fields etc. tenanted and excited not long ago.

It's likely to be staged once more and very soon, with Haven MacQuarrie again at his old stand [illegible] the youngsters eager for stage and screen careers.

MacQuarrie bustled across from Hollywood to visit relatives in Westbrook and stepped in at the side [illegible] desk to pay his respects yesterday afternoon.

Two or three backers want him to take hold for them for a renewed fling of "Do You Want to Be an Actor" and he is not having any easy time deciding which offer to accept.

He may originate the doings in New England if certain local sponsors can be stepped up to what other places and people will pay.

Labor Shows It Is Big Factor In Elections

United, It Holds the Balance of Power, Divided It Falls

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—What President Roosevelt did for John L. Lewis and "Bill" Green was to remind them of the lesson of last Tuesday's elections, in terms of the well known motto of Kentucky.

That is just as good a motto for Mr. Roosevelt's coalition party now in control of the government, and hoping to remain in control, as it is for the CIO and the A. F. of L.

John and Bill had seen the handwriting on the wall in New York and in Detroit, before the President spoke in favor of organized labor getting together. All three have 1938 and 1940 in mind.

The big lesson of the recent elections is also having a psychological effect on Congress.

CHANCE FOR LABOR BILL

The chances for the breaking of the deadlock on the Roosevelt wages and hours bill and its enactment, are enhanced. Opposition to it in the South will remain, but will hardly prove to be efficient.

But opposition to it in the North will crumble in view of the clear demonstration in Tuesday's elections that a new political factor, the American Labor Party, must be reckoned with from now on.

Where labor was united as in New York, it stood; where it was divided as in Detroit, it fell. But although labor won one victory and took one licking, the result was the same: the new Labor Party temporarily holds the balance of power.

CAN WIN ELECTION

It will continue in this favorable position until its excesses alarm and unite the conservatives who, to their cost, have ignored the sound principle of the Kentucky motto, "United we stand, divided we fall."

The burying of the labor hatchet all along the line has become a political necessity not alone for labor but for the New Deal.

There was something deliciously humorous in the spectacle of the congressional gentlemen of the agricultural committees traveling all over the country holding hearings on the new farm bill...

And then calling Chester C. Davis of the federal reserve board on the telephone, when they got back.

FARM BILL IN PERIL

Davis, the head man in old NRA, is still the administration's agricultural No. 1 boy. He knows all the answers. The committeemen might have saved themselves a lot of one-night stands by talking to him in the first place.

Some sort of a farm bill will be jammed through the House as soon as possible.

I am genuinely grateful for the interest and cooperation manifested at the Cooking School of last evening, the success of which must have, no doubt, pleased you. As the 1500 people were leaving the Hall I heard any number of most favorable comments anent the entertainment and the instruction given.

I really was surprised at the close attention paid to the demonstrators and there were many expressions of hope that the evening could be repeated at some future date.

Recovery Problems Discussed

Government Advisors Study Ways, Means Of Aiding Trade

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

It sounds almost too good to be true but the word of reliable newspaper correspondents in Washington is to the effect the administration is taking the current recession in business seriously. And furthermore ways and means of ending it quickly are being canvassed in earnest.

In a four-hour meeting with various government economic advisors at the White House, President Roosevelt is reported to have gone over the entire trade and business situation. Various methods of inducing private capital to undertake a quick campaign of industrial construction as a major stroke toward ending the recession are said to have been discussed. The alternative to some such movement by private capital, presented by the government economists, is understood to be resumption of government spending on the grand scale. Presumably this means for direct relief, housing, public building and the other pump-priming activities of recent experience. It begins to look as if the New Deal philosophy that the best time to obtain reforms is during bad times is in for a reversal. It will now read, the best time for business to obtain relief from excessive regulatory burdens is when artificial restraints and bureaucracy have brought false, deficit-induced recovery to a halt.

DOUGLAS INVITATION

Another incident suggesting a more friendly feeling toward industry as a whole is furnished by SEC Chairman William O. Douglas. Following the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, upholding the decision of Federal Judge Julian W. Mack in the Electric Bond & Share case that the company must register under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 or be denied the use of the mails, Mr. Douglas issued an open invitation to all companies to register. That in itself is not important, perhaps, but his promise that the commission would go more than half way is significant.

* * *

We think this especially true when the SEC chairman goes so far as to say that resentments and grudges are not held and the commission is not looking for scalps. All this is aside from the worthiness or not of the holding company act. It is merely noted to show that official attitudes are much more temperate than one might expect after the incidents of the past four years which aroused the antagonism of many business men.

MARKET MEETS TEST

Yesterday the market met and passed the first test of its position. It was one technicians have been awaiting for many weeks for the light it might throw on the ability of the October lows to hold. On a closing price basis the industrials as a group touched a new low, but it must be remembered that such levels were well above the intra-session lows of October 19, even though a leading issue or two did break through. At the same time, the rails failed to follow the lead of the industrials. While their action in so doing would be of minor importance in view of the lengthy decline, refusal to do so at last throws these two all important indices out of gear.

* * *

Up to now industrials and rails have worked together in seeking new downside figures and with the spell broken there is good reason for hoping that the decline is ended. This writer is inclined to believe this is so and only asks that another session or two elapse before taking a definite stand to that effect. For, in the light of past experience, all followers of the Dow-Jones averages know that most downtrends so end.

Stock Leaders Up 3 Points As Dealings Turn Quiet

Sponsorship of Markets Has Changed

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—The sponsorship of security markets has changed notably since the days of rugged individualism.

In the flamboyant markets of 1929 the chief mentors of the security buying public were the investment bankers, led by the house on the corner.

Recent developments indicate the extent to which federal politicians have been taking over the scepter of leadership in the security markets from the private bankers.

By a series of four moves since mid-August, consisting of a cut in rediscount rates, de-sterilization of $300,000,000 of gold, liberalization of eligibility rules on rediscounting paper and, lastly, the reduction in margins from 55 per cent to 40 per cent, tended to identify the federal reserve authorities with the bull, or counter-deflationary, side in business and in the security markets.

INVISIBLE POWER BOOM

In somewhat the same spirit, a federal officeholder, Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and former head of the Federal Power Commission, in a recent utterance in effect advanced the thesis that there is an invisible boom in the electric light and power industry.

He supported his argument with statistical data indicating that the utilities had shown more consistent improvement in earnings than the unregulated industries.

Recognizing that his view was somewhat heterodox and widely at variance with the prevailing "illusion" marketwise that the public utilities are in the "trouble area," Mr. McNinch conceded:

"I am not unmindful that there are some who feel that Federal projects either now authorized, in process of construction or completed and in operation constitutes some sort of threat to the private power industry. This is said to account in part for the timidity of certain leaders in the power industry to respond to the demand for construction of additional generating facilities to meet the rising requirements of consumers.

"These ill-founded fears and forebodings find answer in the recital of the factual history of a constantly rising tide of private power company revenue, gross and net, during the past few years. It sums up that the industry is experiencing unparalleled prosperity and that there is ahead of it an immediate and ever increasing demand for meeting the nation's requirements of electric power.

"This is a challenge to put aside skepticism now discredited by facts and go forward to the duty and great opportunity of responding to the demand of the consuming public."

BULL TIP

In plain words, this is a bull tip from high official authority that the electric utilities are a buy marketwise. Parenthetically, in case the tip goes wrong this time, the politicians, rather than the investment bankers, may become the scapegoats.

Mr. McNinch's implication that political fears may obscure realistic investment values in utility securities is not without merit. When the public utilities act of 1935 was under consideration, good and bad utility securities alike suffered.

Recognizing this, one of the principal New York life insurance companies took an enormous investment position in the underlying bonds of utility operating units, and soon was rewarded for its foresight when subsequent market prices reduced the yield obtainable in open market purchases.

Companies within the competitive zone of the TVA have been especially affected by the threat of federal competition.

On account of utility fears, the nation is being deprived of perhaps a thousand million dollars a year of utility buying of heavy capital goods—a potential source of much constructive employment.

Undoubtedly future utility expansion is needed, and the federal government, with its budget still unbalanced, ought to welcome private efforts to go out and mobilize the savings of the people for the purpose of developing this vital industry.

Foreclosures Below 1936

September foreclosures on nonfarm real estate in the United States totaled 12,123, a decline of 26.4 per cent from September, 1936, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported.

For the first nine months of this year estimated foreclosures totaled 119,735, or 15.3 per cent under the first three-quarters of 1936, the board stated.

The September foreclosures showed an increase above August of 9.2 per cent, partly due to the fact that August totals of 11,101 were exceptionally low this year.

Coppers and Utilities Lead Upswing

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Stock market leaders stepped gingerly into recovery territory today, with favored issues advancing as much as 3 points or so.

Dealings turned extremely slow after a rather fast opening and the ticker tape frequently was motionless. There were also a few small losers near the fourth hour.

Helping brighten the market picture was an upswing in recently weak commodities. Wheat, corn, cotton, copper, rubber and hide futures came back briskly. Secondary bonds improved. First quarter pig iron prices were reaffirmed by some producers.

Stock sellers exhibited more timidity than usual, brokers said, because of thoughts that when the special session of Congress convenes next week the administration may pull a "rabbit" out of the hat as a means of reviving stagnant business and industry. Wall Street, in addition, was a bit more confident alterations would be made in the much-disputed undistributed earnings and capital gains tax laws.

GOLD SHARES DIP

Gold mining shares reversed their uptrend of the past week or so and the principal foreign currencies dipped in terms of the dollar, following announcement the Treasury is shipping gold abroad for the first time in nearly two years.

Tilting forward the greater part of the session were Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, American Metal, Inspiration Copper, How Sound, Phelps Dodge, Consolidated Edison, Stone & Webster, Electric Power & Light, Public Service of N. J., International Telephone, American Water Works, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible, Inland Steel, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Allied Chemical, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio, Johns-Manville, Owens-Illinois, Amerada, Continental Oil, Phillips Petroleum, Sears Roebuck, Zenith Radio, Deere and International Harvester.

More attention was paid copper shares as the export price of the red metal was given a lift from its low mark of yesterday and the belief was expressed by some in this industry that the domestic rate would be held around its present level of 11 cents a pound.

Rubber company issues lacked vitality, with observers in this field pointing out that profits for the manufacturers in the fourth quarter may make an unfavorable showing with the same period last year.

Power and light company stocks regained popularity as hopes were revived of a more lenient governmental attitude toward these concerns.

CURRENT TOPICS

Bolstering the rails was action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in setting up a special three-way committee to speed up hearings on the carriers' petition for a flat 15 per cent freight rate increase. It was thought this step would make a decision probable within 90 days or less. Ordinarily an inquiry of this sort would require about six months.

Estimates of final quarter steel production were being revised downward in view of the sharp drop in this week's mill operations. Previous forecasts placed the final three months at around 50 per cent of capacity. Trade authorities now believe a figure between 40 and 45 per cent is likely.

Noted also were predictions of the bureau of agricultural economics that, with changes in prices and marketings now in prospect, farm income next year will be under that of 1937.

Sterling, at the beginning of foreign currency transactions, was off ⅛ of a cent at $5.01 7-16. The French franc was .00½ of a cent lower at 3.41 cents.

High Petroleum Output in Prospect

The production of petroleum in the United States this year promises to reach the highest figure on record, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Even if there should be some curtailment in the rate during the remainder of the year, it is hardly likely that the decrease would be sufficient to offset the gain in the first nine months.

The output during this period amounted to 956,000,000 barrels as compared to 814,000,000 barrels in the first nine months of last year, an increase of 17.4 per cent.

If the output in the last quarter should be at the same rate as in September, the annual production would amount to 1,293,000,000 barrels in 1937, as compared with the previous high record of 1,099,000,000 in 1936 and with the depression's low of 785,000,000 barrels in 1932. It would exceed the pre-depression volume of 1,007,000,000 produced in 1929 by 28.4 per cent.

PRICES HIGHER

Despite the sharp increase in output this year, petroleum prices have advanced, extending the upward movement which began in 1933.

The ability of the industry to raise prices and, at the same time, to increase production this year has been due only partly to the expansion of the consumers' income. It has also been due to the fact that consumers have spent an unusually large proportion of their income on petroleum.

This is shown by the fact that, if current conditions are maintained during the remainder of 1937, the index of the value of petroleum production will be 9.6 per cent above the 1929 level, while national income will be at least 14 per cent below that pre-depression level. As compared with last year's figures, the value of petroleum output this year will show an increase of 25.8 per cent as compared with a gain of not more than 14.4 per cent in the national income.

CURTAILMENT LIKELY

It seems hardly likely that the demand for petroleum will be maintained at such an abnormally high level next year. Consequently, a curtailment of output or a drop in the price level or both will occur in 1938 unless further inflation raises the national income sufficiently to offset the lack of such an abnormal demand relative to income as that which has prevailed this year.

Since, at the present time, there are indications that some deflation, rather than further inflation, will characterize the general economic situation next year, the petroleum industry seems rather definitely to be facing a recession in 1938. It would not be surprising if evidence of the beginning of such a recession appeared before the end of the present year.

Buick Steps Up November Schedule

FLINT, Nov. 9—Buick division of General Motors Corporation has again revised upward its schedule for November production with the latest plan calling for output of 27,134 cars this month. This third upward revision was made on the strength of the reaction from the Chicago auto show, factory officials said.

October sales totaled 18,009, against 10,181 a year ago, with 7439 cars being sold in the last 10 days of last month.

Bucyrus-Erie Declares Dividend

Bucyrus-Erie Company declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common, payable December 16. On October 16 a dividend of 25 cents was paid, marking resumption of dividends.

The declaration of 50 cents on the common is designated an interim dividend, payable December 16 to stock of record December 1.

Container Sales Now 60 Per Cent Over 1929

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Manufacturers of metal cans and glass containers expect that 1937 will be the biggest year in their history from the standpoint of volume of sales, according to a survey of the container industry just completed by the Standard Statistics Company.

Present prospects are that both divisions of the trade will see production totals some 60 per cent over those of 1929.

The decreases in production volumes suffered by container makers in the depths of the depression were very much less than those of industry as a whole. Even in 1931 and 1932, output of the can makers never dropped more than eight per cent below the 1929 levels and that of the glass container manufacturers was never off more than 20 per cent, whereas industrial production as a whole was cut in half in 1932.

This extremely favorable record over the past eight years has been made possible by two factors. The first, of course, is that more than half the total of sales is for the packaging of foods, also one of the most stable of industries from the standpoint of volume. A sizeable part of the remaining demand is for packing almost equally stable lines such as drugs and medicinal products, and oils.

The other factor in the growth of the container industry, which has made it prosper to a much larger extent than normal secular growth would warrant, is the developments of new uses for containers. Among these are the tin can for beer, now firmly established, and the packaging of lubricating oils in small cans.

Production of both metal and glass containers is in the hands of a few strong companies, although the hundred or so plants of these corporations are scattered all over the country.

American Can and Continental Can produce more than 70 per cent of all metal containers, and in the glass division, Owens-Illinois Glass and Hazel-Atlas Glass account for 60 per cent.

Douglas Sees SEC Rule Changes After Study

Many Phases of Law Being Examined

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—Final outcome of SEC studies of the stock market may be "either a little more regulation or a little less regulation," Chairman Douglas said at a press conference. He gave no indication as to exactly what might be further or less restricted.

Breaking silence of the commission on recent market conditions, Douglas let it be known officially for the first time that SEC is studying Section 16 B of Securities Exchange Act of 1934, which embraces the liability on trading by principal officers or stockholders.

As a matter of course, he said, the commission has been making studies of various phases of exchange problems. As little segments of these studies are completed, they will be made public, he said.

Douglas explained that these studies also included member trading, some aspects of margins; certain phases of short sales; odd-lot trading; various phases of specialists, and some phases of over-the-counter markets as distinguished from exchange markets.

Referring briefly to his recent conference with stock exchange representatives, he explained that the entire basic statistical system was discussed. He said the commission should have something soon as result of its stock market study.

Slump Taken as Matter of Course

U. S. Hurrying to Get It Over, Says Noted Economist

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

Special to the Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—With commodity prices leading the way, industrial and business activity continued to recede last week. In a general sort of way, it can be said that the level was about the same as that of the summer of 1936, before the big rise came that ended last spring.

The further drop in commodity markets, including futures, does not suggest any early recovery in buying or in production.

One important fact about this recession is the way almost everybody now admits that we are headed down. It is almost as if, by common consent, we are hurrying to get it over.

ADMINISTRATION "FORECAST"

Even the administration has quit the Pollyanna stuff, and has come out with a "forecast" to the effect that no recovery is likely before next summer, and that the 1938 average of business activity will be lower than the 1937 average.

This is not at all a bad idea. Indeed, I think that there is reason to believe that the more quickly the readjustments are made, the shorter the depression. Thus we may hope that this is to be one of those short, sharp slumps.

Certainly, one can find a few cases in the past in which we have had such large percentage declines in the stock market and in steel production in a similar space of time.

LITTLE SIGN OF PANIC

Unless I am much mistaken, too, there has been little sign of panic. Everybody seems to take the slump more or less as a matter of course, and underneath there is a feeling that there is no need of any prolonged depression.

In fact, the general feeling is that the New Deal administration led us into this decline. It must assume responsibility, and thereby must admit that its past policies do not maintain prosperity. Thus it necessarily follows that the administration must try something else.

And if there is anything else that remains to be tried but the old-fashioned way of making business pay by making it profitable to hire labor and capital, I don't know what it is.

It is quite evident that unless the powers that be want to run the risk of panic and a deflation spiral, they will soon do things needed to reassure savers, investors and enterprisers.

REAL RECOVERY NEEDED

You see, "the government" must "do something." But the old stuff has lost its charm. We have had a lot of reforms. Now what we need is some real recovery. That will take more than a mere breathing spell for business.

In this connection, it seems that the extra session of Congress may be a blessing in disguise. Congress is conservative in comparison with the executive. It is likely to oppose all sorts of "social planning," such as the wages and hours bill and the control of crops by the government.

My guess is that Congress will hold the President in check in his attempts to increase executive power and government control over business. At the same time the President will check Congress in its weakness concerning greenbacks and monetary inflation. Thus the good old system of checks and balances will save us.

One significant point to be observed is the growing tendency in foreign dispatches to express criticism of the administration's economic policies. They point out that, like France, we are learning that we can't succeed by doing less work and giving more pay, or by loading enterprise with mounting taxes.

I think this change in foreign dispatches is a straw in the wind.

R. I. Payrolls Up in October

The total manufacturing payroll for Rhode Island in October, according to figures of the Brown Bureau of Business Research, was 3.8 per cent above September and 3.6 per cent above October, 1936.

In textiles, the wool and worsted payroll of $1,337,495 was an increase of 3.9 per cent over September. The miscellaneous textiles payroll of $1,792,742 was an increase of 1.8 per cent, while cotton mill payrolls aggregating $1,797,129 were 2.1 per cent below September. All textile payrolls showed a decrease from October of last year as follows: Wool and worsteds, 11 per cent; cotton, 9.4 per cent; miscellaneous, 1.6 per cent.

Railroad Scrap Off $1 a Ton

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9—No. 1 railroad scrap is down $1 a ton to a new quotation of $14.50 to $15 a ton. This is based upon sales by a railroad at around these figures. The price of railroad scrap is so low that two large roads recently refused to sell their No. 1 at the bids presented by dealers.

This new price on railroad scrap is equivalent to $13.50 to $14 for regular No. 1 heavy melting, a reduction of $1 a ton, railroad scrap commanding a premium over the regular grade. However, the quotation on regular No. 1 is nominal and the trade feels that the slightest buying by mills would cause an upturn in prices.

Tours Mid-West Seeking Facts

Forbes Presents Clear Picture of Business In Cleveland

By B. C. FORBES

CLEVELAND, Nov. 9—How are things going, how are people feeling in the middle-west?

An investigation made on behalf of the writer by A. H. Billingsley, head of Fuller & Smith & Ross, yields the following comprehensive comparative information:

EMPLOYMENT GREATER

Employment in all industries for the first eight months was 11 per cent greater than in 1936.

Workers employed in manufacturing industries declined less than 1 per cent in October. In 100 representative factories normally employing about half the total number of industrial workers here, payrolls have dropped from 77,782 on September 30 to 77,234 persons, a reduction of .7 per cent.

While some merchants are singing the blues over a "weak final quarter," little evidence is found to support this pessimism. Dollar volume will be well over 1936, but total profits from retail trade will probably be smaller, due principally to increased wages.

General department store sales for eight months were up 12.3 per cent.

BUILDING PERMITS GAIN

Whereas building permits during the first nine months of 1936 in Cleveland and 13 surrounding suburbs were $16,431,852, this year the total was $18,497,627, a gain of 12.6 per cent.

Business failures are slightly lower this year.

Exports from the Cleveland customs district office for the first seven months of this year totaled $16,824,016, an increase of 62 per cent. Imports at $10,423,890 are up 52 per cent.

Cleveland's constantly increasing industrial output was paced this year by the machine tool industry—up 120 per cent over 1936 including greatly expanded exports.

A great boon to Cleveland is Republic Steel's new $15,000,000 98-inch hot and cold continuous strip mill, called the largest, fastest and most modern in the world. Two thousand men will ultimately be employed in the plant; capacity, 70,000 gross tons per month.

INCOME TREBLED

A campaign for funds trebled the Chamber of Commerce's income, bringing in close to $350,000 to finance a Cleveland advancement program.

On November 1 a market expansion program was launched to foster trade in consumer goods. The new program spotlights not only the city's wide diversity of industrial and commercial interests, but also will stimulate the farming interests of northern Ohio, and spur livestock and meat packing industries, and focus attention on such Cleveland assets as the fresh fruit and vegetable interests.

Cleveland boasts 275 acres under glass, a capital investment of nearly $15,880,000, the largest concentrated area of hothouses in the world.

Insurance Group Files New Haven Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (INS)—Fourteen large insurance companies, claiming to hold $55,000,000 of securities of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, today presented to the ICC a new reorganization plan for that road.

The insurance group told the commission that as was the case with its previous proposals, this plan objects to the merger of the Old Colony with the New Haven and proposes a further development of the now existing alternate route to Boston, unless some "fair and equitable" terms are proposed for the operation of the line of the Boston & Providence Railroad Corporation in connection with the New Haven's property.

The insurance group tentatively estimates the capitalizable assets of the New Haven at $365,000,000 and allocates new securities in such manner as to provide for approximately 58 per cent secured debt, 18 per cent of $5 participating preferred stock and 24 per cent common stock.

Approximately $57,000,000 of equipment trust obligations and divisional bonds will remain undisturbed, according to the group's plan, and the holders of obligations secured by present first and refunding mortgage will receive 60 per cent in new first and refunding mortgage Series A 4 per cent bonds to 1972 and 40 per cent in 5 per cent participating preferred stock.

Tobacco Acreage Drop Likely

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (INS)—The flue-cured tobacco crop of 1938 "suggests" a reduction of about 10 per cent from the acreage harvested this year "if the present marketing situation is to be maintained," the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said today.

The bureau said that although domestic consumption is increasing and prospects favor increased exports during the current marketing year, "decreased exports from the 1938 crop seem likely unless prices are materially lower."

The bureau reported that the outlook for most other types and classes of tobacco, flue cured and fire-cured "being notable exceptions," appeared to be "fairly satisfactory."

Goodrich Uses More Coal Than Rubber

AKRON, O., Nov. 9—In manufacturing more than 32,000 rubber products, the B. F. Goodrich Co. annually consumes over 3500 cars of coal; 2200 cars of crude rubber; 1700 cars of fabric; 400 cars of carbon black; 1100 cars of pigments and minerals; 165 cars of gasoline and 160 cars of lumber.

Curb Stocks Up Fractionally

A few specialties were up a point or more in small trades as the session neared mid-day. Utilities, oils and mining shares crept forward fractions.

As "big board" shares lifted a little, Driver-Harris pushed up around two points and Heyden Chemical advanced a point at one time.

Fractional gainers included Niagara Hudson Power, Northern States Power "A," Pioneer Gold, United Gas, United Light & Power "A", Consolidated Copper, Creole Petroleum, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and Cities Service.

Falling back minor fractions were Wright Hargreaves, American Superpower, Arkansas Natural Gas "A" and Gulf Oil.

Skelly Oil

Skelly Oil Company declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common, payable December 15 to stock of record November 22.

EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.*—St. Mark X., 15.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. C. P. Mills, Episcopal minister, Riverside, Ct. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Joseph Stevenson, Methodist Church, Monson.)

The Editor Says:

THE ADDRESS of Daniel J. Doherty, newly-elected National Commander of the American Legion, to Melrose High School students should be read by every father and mother in the nation.

"But," he warned, "attempts are constantly being made to destroy it by subversive organizations whose appeal is always to the eager minds of youth."

That is the truth. Hardly a week passes without evidence of some new Communist or Fascist activity in a school or college. The story of boys and girls being told of the advantages of substituting vodka for our "capitalistic-cursed machinery" is familiar to everybody.

Yet, as Commander Doherty says, the young people are NOT TO BLAME. The youthful mind is not different today from what it was during any other period in our history. It is just as receptive to GOOD TEACHING as it has always been.

Children are not to be condemned if the instruction made available to them by disloyal teachers is unworthy of American standards. If children are the victims of education that implants dangerous doctrines, they are INNOCENT VICTIMS.

Parents who permit alien-minded instructors to remain on the public payroll are the guilty parties.

Clearly, as the American Legion has ever maintained, the educational struggle is NOT among the children. It is a battle to protect our sons and daughters from those who would poison their minds against THEIR GOD, against THEIR FLAG and against THEIR COUNTRY.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER

—could not shock us more than the Walpole, N. H., police report of a hit-and-run driver's callously flinging the body of a 17-year-old boy down a 20-foot embankment to cover up the accident and delay an alarm.

Self-preservation is powerful in everyone. It is an instinct that goes back to the very beginning of man. Nobody wants to be punished or disgraced.

Nevertheless, no right-thinking person would ever carry self-preservation to the extent of leaving an injured human being to die alone and unattended. An African savage could be trusted to show more mercy.

If what New Hampshire authorities say is true, they should make every possible effort to catch the motorist responsible for this outrage. The highway is certainly not the place for such a man.

GENIAL AND FANTASTIC

—H. G. Wells is with us again. When this widely-publicized builder of air castles has nothing else to do he hops a boat for America with his yearly lesson on "How to Do It" and "Where We Are Heading For" under his arm.

On America, he counsels, lies the burden of "an immense role in human history," with the necessity of maintaining the traditions of free speech, education and the "liberalness of your English heritage."

Thus, like many others of His Majesty's subjects, Mr. Wells doesn't mind hinting that we are more or less carbon copies of our British brethren.

Fortunate for him, however, is the fact that his seat is on the lecture platform, not in a courtroom witness box. Under cross-examination, it might be difficult to pass off as "liberalism" the fact that Englishmen had to buy American newspapers to learn that their former king was abdicating.

THE POOR PAY TAXES

—in America, whether they know it or not. According to the Twentieth Century Fund, an organization devoted to the study of tax problems, the lion's share of the tax burden in this country is carried by employed persons with salaries between $20 and $40 a week.

The Fund reports that the $1000-a-year wage earner in Boston pays $123 a year in taxes; the $2000-a-year man pays $238, and the $5000 man pays $618.

So, if ALL incomes over $5000 a year were CONFISCATED, the total would be more than two billions LESS than the total taxes now raised.

No matter what form the tax, it eventually SOAKS THE POOR, and no politician can prove that the situation is otherwise.

DEATH ISN'T FUNNY

—We thought everybody realized this. We were wrong. A group of thoughtless boys in Waltham very apparently do not.

For the second time in a few weeks, this group has rolled a boulder onto the Boston and Maine railroad tracks that pass through the city. Twice what might well be called a miracle has prevented derailment of a locomotive, with death or injury for the engineer and his passengers.

There should be NO THIRD TIME. The boys ought to realize the seriousness of their act NOW.

Stop Choking It!

By Nelson Harding

Revision of STRANGLING TAXES will be the first business of Congress, according to Chairman Vinson of the House Sub-Committee on Taxes.

The general sentiment of the committee, he reports, is for relief of the SUFFERINGS AND HARDSHIPS caused by taxes.

New York Day by Day

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 9

IT would not likely happen in any other city. That is the combination of barriers that have kept Bill Corum, the sports writer, and I from knowing each other, save through an occasional hail that we exchange through our newspaper columns.

We live across a few roof tops from one another—he in a hotel and I in an apartment house—in New York's mid town. We came from Missouri whistle stops only a few hours apart and in the recent merger of two metropolitan newspapers found ourselves articled to the same journal.

At least a dozen of his close friends are friends of mine—several times I have missed him by an eyelash at this party or that. One of his hangouts is an estaminet into which I sometimes drop on my infrequent rounds of the town by gas light.

Every night, nearly, I walk the dog by Corum's hotel—sometimes as late or early as 3 a. m., and as I would know him from sight by his photographs I am certain I have never seen him coming in. It is just one of those things.

The flowing Windsor tie, such as the sartorial trade mark of Morris Gest, is in again. It was a high favorite in the Robert W. Chambers novel days. A recent film, featuring artists who appeared with Windsor bows, helped to perk up a new interest in a vanishing style. Russell Patterson, the artist, wears a Windsor now and then, and so does Joseph Hergesheimer.

But hat manufacturers say Al Smith has spiked all chances of reviving the brown derby. It used to bob up for a seasonal flare every five years or so, but cannot get going any more. Smith's benny has been too widely kidded and cartooned for anyone to wear it with dignity. Al remains about the only person who can wear the brown derby and still be taken seriously.

The debutante heiress, Gloria Baker, has become one of the most extravagantly publicized maids of the season. And a choice target for the gossip writers. If she visits a night club and applauds the orchestra she is chronicled next day as mooning over the saxophone player. "Mimi," as she is known to her intimates, uses the same technique as her half brother, Alfred Vanderbilt. She is attended by a different person every time she steps out. It is a matter of record, that young Vanderbilt was never seen with the same lady two nights in succession. An accomplished turfman, he travels much.

Canine barometer: Our cousin's Sealyham is amazingly storm conscious. A half hour before rain, lightning or thunder comes up the dog begins trotting around, panting and trembling. Just before the deluge it hides in a closet or under the bed. The severity of the storm is indicated by the animal's fright.

Every now and then our household is upset by harking back to the long ago. This morning at breakfast we let loose a gale of guffaws—my wife and I—recalling the times we used to butter our hands for the taffy pull.

The St. Regis has made an entrance off Fifth avenue to its King Cole bar, where hangs the original over-exploited Maxfield Parrish portrait. It was done originally for the old Knickerbocker bar owned by the Astor estate, and when Vincent Astor took up the active direction of the St. Regis he had it moved there.

The King Cole canvas and the Ben Hur electrical chariot race sign were two of the Broadway high spots when I came to town. King Cole was the topic for much banter in the vaudeville skits and off-color gags in the saloons.

I first saw it with Bob Davis and Ray Long but was more interested in living figures at one of the tables—Caruso talking to two gentlemen I recognized as Weber and Fields.

And later into the room came Rex Beach in a hunting coat, just back from lassoing polar bears with Fred Stone in Alaska. Did my eyes pop?

Lois Long tells the story of the two swishy boys who stopped at a roadhouse for liquid refreshments. One said he would have a coca cola and the second said he'd like ginger ale with ice. The third ordered:

"Plain water for me; I'm doing the driving."

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

WHY DIVORCE?

Most of the threatened divorces in this world, like most of our other troubles, never happen.

Breaking up a marriage is not a joyous or a simple thing. That "just-after-the-separation" feeling is not the exhilarating thing many people imagine it.

It is more like the mingled sensation of pain and surprise that comes after you have removed a tight shoe and before the ache has subsided.

No matter how much of a disappointment or a torment a husband may have been, a wife misses him as she would an eye, a tooth or an arm. And even a poor eye, a bad tooth or a weak arm may be bitterly missed.

She misses the sound of his key in the latch—or even the heart-aching uncertainty of WAITING for the sound of his key in the latch. She misses the little ceremony of hanging up his lounging robe. She misses his soft, big handkerchiefs, that come in so nicely for bad colds, removing beauty cream and polishing mirrors.

Untwining lives that have been intertwined is a sinful process—and always leaves the victim with that "all-gone" feeling. We marry for trivial reasons, we separate for absurd, foolish reasons; but we reunite for almost no reason—just "for instance."

Human Side of the News

By
Edwin C. Hill

A MID-TOWN textile goods jobber told me the other day that the girls were not taking kindly to the attempted boycott of Japanese silk. It looks as if they will have to call out the militia if they hope to make American women wear cotton stockings—call them lisle or what you will.

In other ways, we are more adaptable. Just as Old King Cotton seems to be hanging on the ropes again, the automobile show touches off the news that 578 miles of cotton roads have been built in the United States.

Twenty-four states are co-operating with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in experimental construction. There are about 2,000,000 miles of improved roads in rural sections of the United States. Cotton fabric for an eighteen-foot road costs from $450 to $750 a mile.

There's a tremendous new domestic demand, provided the scheme works out. Government scientists have been working on it for years. They give assurance that it will make more durable and better roads, with lower maintenance costs. Short tests have backed up this claim.

At Prosperity, S. C., they ripped up a section of cotton road put down years ago and found the fabric in perfect condition. Road maintenance cost had been less and the condition of the road better than in roads of ordinary construction.

Cotton houses are also being boomed by science. Here, again, there is an endlessly widening new demand. I have before me a booklet put out by the Cotton Textile Institute, reprinted from the annals of the American Academy of Social and Political Science.

Pasted on its pages are samples of new cotton fabrics. Among them is the "cotton membrane for re-enforcing bituminous road surfaces." It is a loose cross-hatching of cotton string, about the diameter of ordinary store string, looking somewhat like monk's cloth.

Here's a mottled green sample which you would swear was leather, but which is "a typical Pyroxylin-Coated Fabric." Next to it is a snip of "Osnaburg," a bag fabric. They now import jute from India to make fabric to pack cotton in. This cotton bag fabric would use 100,000 bales of cotton a year. They are just getting it started.

Then there is a new cotton filter cloth, for processing foodstuffs, chemicals and many other products; a cotton head lining for automobile interiors; a cord fabric for tire casings, already widely used, and many other developments for the industrial use of cotton.

Economics is, indeed, the "dismal science," but in this day and age it can be as exciting as a home run in the ninth with the bases full. Science just now, in its varied wizardry, is clouting out at least a three-bagger at just such a moment. It turns in these cotton miracles just at a time when the government is slapping a pulmotor on old King Cotton.

We used to produce 60 per cent of the cotton moving in the world market. Now we produce about 40 per cent. The government has been turning to the frequently tried but ineffective schemes of crop limitation, subsidies and price valorization. Like the U. S. Marines arriving to save the heroine, here's science with a dozen practicable means of doubling the domestic use—sustaining prices and making new jobs.

GENERAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK, China's supreme boss, somewhat indolently and insolently says that "it is the duty of the United States and England to protect the freedom of the seas, not permitting a Japanese blockade of the China coast," that it also "was the responsibility of the United States and Great Britain to uphold the Nine-Power Treaty."

What about the RESPONSIBILITY of China? Why has China, a country of 400,000,000 people, done NOTHING to defend herself against the enemy that has threatened her since 1895?

Why has China lazily neglected to fortify her coast, build up a navy and an air force that is not cock-eyed?

Why has she laid down in supine hopelessness, depending on the United States and Britain to do her dirty work?

Why has she sold out her own people over and over again in the form of "concessions" to the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany and her natural enemy, Japan?

He was named by his revolutionary-minded blacksmith father for the greatest of Mexican heroes and liberators.

It was Benito Juarez, a highly cultured full-blooded Indian and a man of extremely liberal and democratic ideas, who assisted in the revolt against the dictator, Santa Anna, in 1855. In 1861 he was elected constitutional president of Mexico. His troubles began with France over debts. Juarez declared war on France. Then came the Austrian-born but French-coached Maximilian, who proclaimed himself Emperor of Mexico, and who was finally shot. Juarez was re-elected president and died in 1875.

Ironically enough, Benito Juarez was in aims and character the very opposite of his namesake of today, although before the war Mussolini was a Marxian Socialist. Today Marxian Socialists are executed or exiled in Italy.

So Mussolini was born, by name at least, a constitutional liberal democrat, became a Marxian Socialist, and is now the father of Fascism.

Is this natural evolution or just will-to-power-at-any-price? It sounds to me like the latter.

The governments of the world are today—particularly more today than ever—lying to and cheating one another in a manner that even professional thieves would blush at.

Their names are no good on anything they write. They begin to swindle and undermine one another before the ink is dry on their "pacts" and "treaties."

Never was there a greater fallacy. Knowledge does not build up CHARACTER. All the "enlightenment" in the world pumped into our ears over the radio or absorbed in schools or out of books will not make an HONEST man.

Listen, World!

NOW, wherever one looks, there is rough gold.

In the thick, dried grass, tawny as the pelt of some wild animal.

Everywhere there is gold, mingled and mellowed gold.

As though all the abundance of the year . . . its perfume and potency, fat seeds, rich juices and pungent gums . . . the hot ardor of its fertile earth . . . its brilliant tides of flowers jeweled with petals . . . even the moving madness of its moonlit nights . . . as if all its fervency and beauty and magic had been mingled and melted into this golden glaze.

The faint sigh and crackle of the camp fire, burning fitfully in the open . . . its smoke mounting in a blue, unwavering line, up through the gloom of the forest, past the massed thunder of the pines, into the vast, pale arch of the sky—

All through the year it has been gathering . . . that fragrance . . . all through the rainless months. Layer upon layer, as the spring flowers faded and fell, as the soft pollen clustered and scattered, that fragrance has gathered, has drifted down to the dark, ashy earth.

Now, with the rain, it will give off its perfume . . . fill the gray air with the spice of its incense . . .

Where once the fields were busy with the shouts of the workers and dark with the struggle of the plow—now it is still.

Now the heat and the hurry, the sweat and the fury are forgotten . . . are melted and mingled in this golden ending of the year.

As for me, also, the year nears its end. For me, too, the heat has lost its sting . . . and the hurt its poison . . . and the hurry its pressure.

Now all that has passed is mingled in me as it is in the earth . . . and I, too, REST AND WAIT.
